PLANES BATTLE WARSHIPS

AIR, NAVAL BATTLE
Reported Here (arrow)

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 18 (AP)—Residents of Schiermonnkoog Island, off the north coast of the Netherlands, today reported a fight between unidentified planes and warships some distance outside Netherlands territorial waters.

Witnesses said six warships were attacked by 12 planes about 11 a. m. (5 a. m. EST).

The nationality of the participating craft could not be determined because of the distance from shore. It also was impossible to learn the outcome of the fight.

Schiermonnkoog is ten miles from the German-Netherlands boundary.

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Warning air raid sirens were sounded today at Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands—location of the Scapa Flow naval base—but an all clear signal was given an hour later, the British Press Association said in a dispatch passed for publication.

PARIS, Oct. 18 (AP)—A forty-minute air raid warning sounded this morning in Lille, industrial city of northeastern France. No details of what caused the warning were learned here immediately.

RESCUE SHIP AIDS U. S. LINER IN GALE

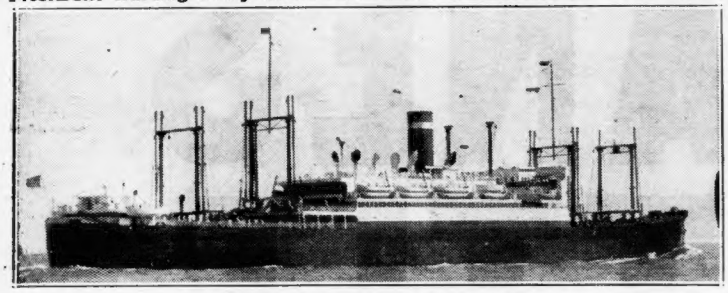
RESCUERS REACH GALE-SWEPT SHIP

Battling through heavy seas, a rescue ship contacted the liner President Harding today about 800 miles from Boston, 300 south of St. John's, Newfoundland, one of two craft which radioed for aid.



S. S. PRESIDENT HARDING

The Coast Guard here declined to name the contacting craft and the Harding's position, but it was believed that the rescue ship was a Coast Guard cutter.

The Coast Guard officials said medical supplies were placed aboard the liner, whose master had reported a number of persons on board to have suffered burns and injuries, among them broken legs, broken ankles, broken arms and broken backs.

MANY INJURED

As another Coast Guard cutter and two commercial steamships were hastening meanwhile to the aid of the British collier Blairberg, disabled because of a lost rudder 160 miles south of St. John's, the President Harding radioed these further details of her own experience:

"During heavy storms many sustained injuries, crew and passengers; 10 serious. Also N. 9 lifeboat and davit and starboard side rail swept away. May have to make Halifax. Heavy seas at present."

Another message from the ship said Henry Heimsoth, engine-room storekeeper, had been operated on for appendicitis at 1:45 p. m. yesterday at the height of the heavy gale.

OPERATION PERFORMED

The operation, performed by the ship's surgeon, Dr. Thomas Sister, assisted by "Dr. and Mrs. Schur of Vienna," was reported successful.

The first message from the President Harding had said:

"Many seriously injured in heavy weather. One seriously burned, four fractured ribs, one broken leg, one skull fracture, two fractured femurs, one fractured spine, several fractured lower legs, two fractured ankles, one fractured scapula, several fractured humeri, one avulsion of the scalp."

Coast guard headquarters at Boston reported that the cutters Hamilton and Duane, among the

NAZI LOSS HEAVY ON WEST FRONT

PARIS, Oct. 18 (AP)—Sharp fighting accompanying a German offensive along the northern part of the Western Front since Monday already has cost the Nazis more than 5000 casualties, French sources estimated today.

The French said their own losses were slight as their troops fell back to previously prepared positions and met the advancing Germans with heavy blasts of artillery fire.

Raiding parties from both sides fought a series of localized engagements during the night, the general staff reported in its morning communique. These actions were described as "ambushes and trench raids."

The general staff also noted "intense movement" of troops and materials by both highway and railway behind the German linee.

Military commentators said the greatest activity during the night centered on a small wooded area southeast of Saarbruecken.

French machine-gunners forced the attackers to withdraw, they said, without ceding the positions.

The fighting has been centered in the region just across the Moselle river from Luxembourg, and in the sector between Saarbruecken and Pirmasens further east.

French reports said their troops had voluntarily abandoned positions on German soil near the Borg Forest and Perl, leaving only advance lookouts on Schneeberg Heights close to the border.

When the German advance reached that point, they said, these lookouts reported back to artillery units, which already had calculated the range and cut loose at once with their guns.

The German offensive along a 20-mile front east of the Saar River appeared to have been designed to break the French grip on the rich Saarland industrial region, vital to Nazi war industries.

The exact line of the new French positions, which were established

BERLIN, Oct. 18 (INS)—A further French retreat on the western front was claimed today by the German high command, which added that "numerous" French prisoners had been taken.

An official war communique stated:

"Between the Moselle river and Pfaelzerwald, the French evacuated further positions in German territory along the border, which our advancing troops occupied, taking numerous prisoners."

British Till Land Untouched Since Napoleon's Day

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—The British Ministry of Agriculture disclosed today that land which had been in grass since Napoleon's day was being plowed up as part of Britain's grow-more-food campaign.

The ministry cited the case of Bushby Park, a royal preserve which once was the playground of King Henry VIII and his courtiers.

Blackouts Push Auto Deaths Up

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Britain's traffic deaths for the first month of the nightly wartime blackout were 676 more than normal. The official figures showed 554 killed on the nation's roads in September, 1938; 1130 in September, 1939.

There were no fatalities in September from air raids—the menace which the rigid blackout of illumination is designed to reduce.

47th Day

On the Sea and in the Air—Following Germany's "blitzkrieg of the air" against England, a new air and sea battle was reported today. From Amsterdam came a dispatch that 12 unidentified planes and 6 unidentified warships were engaged in battle off an island in Dutch territorial waters. Nazi U-boats struck again, sinking the British passenger liner Yorkshire and the freighter City of Mandalay 500 miles off the coast of France. A United States ship picked up 300 survivors. Air raid alarms were sounded at Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands, near Scapa Flow, scene of yesterday's and Monday's Nazi bombing raids, and at Lille, northern France, not far from the English channel.

On the Land—Germany's thrust toward the Maginot Line near the Luxembourg border was stopped but French observers thought this advance only a feint, pointing out that vast Nazi troop concentrations are taking place at the Wissembourg-Lauterbourg-Rhine triangle near the middle of the German-French frontier. They expect a major drive at this point. It was claimed French guns have taken a toll of 5000 Nazis in the past three days. Ambushes and trench raids were going on on both sides of the line throughout the night.

Behind the Front—Berlin, jubilant over its "sea and air victories" against Britain, feted the crew of the U-boat that sunk the Royal Oak. Iron crosses were given the sub's commander and crew. They paraded about the Nazi capital and were guests of Adolf Hitler at a private dinner.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told Commons Britain has "made a good beginning" in the war. He minimized British losses and said Germany had lost 25 per cent of the planes which invaded the "tight little isle."

As the Scandinavian countries began a joint conference to plan mutual assistance and perhaps put forth some sort of peace formula, President Roosevelt dispatched a note to the gathering advising that the United States joined with them in expressing its support of the principles of neutrality and order under law which those countries have always upheld.

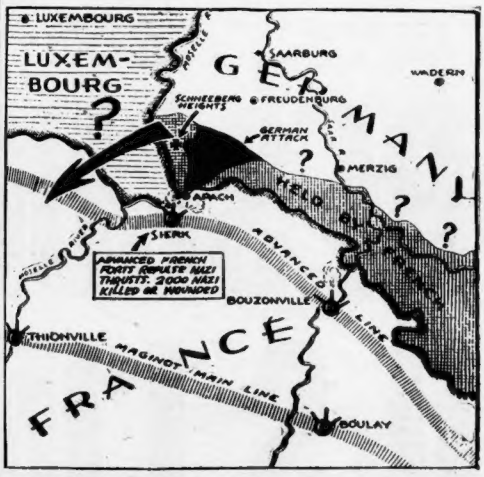
U.S. SHIP SAVES 300 FROM 2 SINKINGS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP)—The U. S. Maritime Commission said today 300 survivors had been rescued by the American liner Independence Hall from two British ships, the 10,183-ton passenger liner Yorkshire and the 3509-ton freighter City of Mandalay, sunk about 500 miles off the coast of France.

In London, operators of the City of Mandalay said they had information the ship had been attacked and sunk.

The Yorkshire, which traveled between India and Liverpool, should have left Rangoon on Sept. 7, according to its latest available schedule.

The master of the rescue vessel, Captain C. J. McKenzie, radioed that he was taking the survivors back to Bordeaux, France, arriving there tomorrow morning.



APPROXIMATELY 2000 German casualties were reported in the Nazi drive to French Apach, which was finally halted by terrific allied gunfire. The Germans, however, were reported preparing thrusts along other parts of the front and where these would come remained a question. There was also the possibility of a thrust through neutral Luxembourg.

Wedding 'Caused' War Envoy Says

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—A government white paper hinted today that the marriage of Germany's then war minister, Marshal Werner von Blomberg, to his stenographer on Jan. 12, 1938, started a chain of events which precipitated the present war.

Sir Nevile Henderson, in another account of his ambassadorship in Berlin, told the British foreign secretary, Lord Halifax:

"In my report of the events of 1933, I drew your lordship's attention to the far-reaching and unfortunate results of the Blomberg marriage.

"I am more than ever convinced of the major disaster which that—in itself minor—incident involved, owing to the consequent elimination from Herr Hitler's entourage of the more moderate of his advisers, such as Field Marshal von Blomberg himself, Baron von Neurath, Generals Fritsch, Beck and others."

Von Blomberg's marriage to the blonde Erika Gruhn, a carpenter's daughter, was witnessed by both Hitler and the No. 2 Nazi Col.-Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

OFFER PROTEST

Col.-Gen. Werner von Fritsch, then commander-in-chief of the Reichswehr, was said to have acted as the spokesman for the officers' corps in protesting to Hitler that the marriage was socially "impossible."

The result was that Hitler assumed personal command of the armed forces and ousted Von Blomberg, Von Frisch and 13 other high-ranking officers in a general shake-

HYDE PARK MOTHER OF 6 SHOT

A family quarrel flared into tragic violence today when Frank Gangemi, 50-year-old Hyde Park tailor, seized a .32 calibre revolver, according to police, and fired six shots at his wife.

Struck by four of the bullets, the woman, mother of six children, ran from the Gangemi home on Hyde Park ave., to the home of a relative on Metropolitan ave., where she was found by police and rushed to the City Hospital.

Hospital officials pronounced her condition critical, but held out hopes for her recovery. One slug struck her in the chest, one in the arm, one in the shoulder, and one in the armpit.

A few minutes after the shooting, police said, Gangemi walked into the Hyde Park police station and told the desk sergeant:

"I have just shot my wife."

He told officers that he had fired at his wife after a quarrel over a recent illness, police said.

It led to the house in Metropolitan ave.

Gangemi was detained but without formal charge pending results from his wife's injuries.

It Takes a Heap O' Pies to Make A Cook a Champ

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 18—Challenging the record of a Maryville, Mo., woman who baked 73,000 pies in 20 years, Mrs. John B. Morin figured out today she has baked 312,000 pies in a little more than 20 years.

She began in 1917 to make pastry for a diner, she said. When business increased, she took over the cooking job for two eating places.

Besides the pies for those with a sweet tooth, Mrs. Morin bakes 80 beef pies one day each week and 70 chicken pies another.

In between times she turns out 25 to 30 dozen muffins every morning.

ACTRESS NURSES 'SHINER'

FRACAS—Lolita Cordoba, fiery Mexican actress, shown here with black eye she received in ship fall, was reported today planning to ask arrest of the son of a millionaire local businessman. Lolita and her sister, Angelita, and Mona Reid, Mayfair cocktail lounge singers, reportedly were "cuffed about" when son intruded on father's Cape cottage party.

Countess Bab's Father Will Seek Divorce

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (INS) — The New York Journal-American today said legal machinery already is in motion for a divorce for Franklin L. Hutton, father of the former Barbara Hutton, and his wife, the former Irene Curley Bodde.

Irene Hutton

The following notice appeared this morning in a New York newspaper:

"I am no longer responsible for any debts incurred by my wife, Irene C. Hutton. (Signed) Franklyn L. Hutton."

The Journal-American said that Hutton is expected to arrive from his South Carolina plantation tonight to confer with his lawyers, adding that the divorce, if and when granted, probably will be handed down in Florida as both Mr. and Mrs. Hutton are residents of that state.

Hutton's daughter, his wife's stepdaughter, the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, is now en route to the United States aboard the Italian liner Conte Di Savoia scheduled to dock late this week.

Jury Finds Ex-Cop And Woman Guilty

In a sealed verdict returned by a jury today to Judge Allan G. Buttrick in superior court, William R. Winter of Johnson st., West Roxbury, former Boston policeman, and Mrs. Katherine M. Gaffey of Weld st., West Roxbury, were found guilty of a statutory offense.

Winter is married and the father of four children and for a number of years was stationed at the Boston Public Library in Copley sq. Mrs. Gaffey is the mother of two children.

The jury took the case yesterday at noon and their verdict was sealed last night for presentation to the court today.

In lower court the former policeman and Mrs. Gaffey were found guilty of the charge and were sentenced to six months each, Winter in the House of Correction and the woman at Charles street jail.

Judge Buttrick, following reading of the verdict, said he will impose sentence later today.

Testimony at the trial, held on the lower court appeal, was that Mrs. Gaffey's husband surprised his wife and Winter in bed, unclad and asleep, at the Gaffey home last July 4.

Gaffey was said to have taken the policeman's clothes and to have tiptoed out and called police.

According to Mrs. Gaffey's testimony, she and the officer had been drinking and she had put Winter to bed in another room.

$30,000 Blaze Hits N. H. Hotel

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 18 (AP)—Fire this forenoon burned the top floor of the five-story Orrington Hotel in the heart of the city's business district and badly damaged by water and smoke the rest of the structure. The blaze, of unknown origin, caused damage which might, the management said, reach $30,000.

JUDGE LEARY SON DYING IN NEW YORK

Leo H. Leary, Jr., son of Judge Leary of the South Boston court, Holy Cross senior and recently heir to $500,000, is dying in New York City of dread angina streptococcus, it was revealed in a report received her etoday.

Young Leary came into prominence in February of this year when, on his 21st birthday, he came into a $500,000 estate left him by his grandmother, the late Mrs. Mary McElroy of Providence.

Mrs. McElroy was the only daughter of Joseph Banigan, millionaire Rhode Island "rubber king."

Judge Leary, a prominent Boston lawyer, was formerly a member of the Public Utilities Board and was an All-America football player at Harvard.

Award $500 'Love Potion' Suit

Emory J. Payne, City Hospital engineer, won a court award of $500 today in his $10,000 "love potion" suit charging alienation of the affections of his now divorced wife, Mrs. Mary I. McElroy Payne.

A Suffolk Superior Court jury assessed the $500 damages against Antonio Grassa of George st., Roxbury, one of two defendants named by Payne.

A second defendant, Mrs. Mary Tomasetti of Auburn st., West End, was exonerated by the jury. Payne had sued each of the two defendants for $5000, alleging that Grassa made love to Mrs. Payne and that Mrs. Tomasetti encouraged the affair.

Mrs. Helen DeBartolo of Magazine st., Roxbury, a witness for Payne, testified that Mrs. Tomasetti gave Mrs. Payne and Grassa a "love potion," administered in wine.

Medical testimony concerning nature and probable effects of the "love potion" was offered by both sides in the suit.

A doctor called by the plaintiff said the drug would "stimulate affection," but was more commonly used as a hair tonic.

An expert for the defense testified the "love potion" was a poison and if two persons took it internally, over a considerable period as charged, "they would die." The doctor denied the potion would act as an affection stimulus.

MARTIN TO ASK CONGRESS STAY DURING 'EMERGENCY'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (INS)—Republican House Leader Joseph Martin, of Massachusetts, will demand that Congress remain in session as long as President Roosevelt's "proclamation of a limited emergency" is in existence, he announced today.

Moreover, Martin has informed colleagues that he is confident that the house will refuse to adjourn the special session after the neutrality issue is disposed of, but will keep Congress in extraordinary session until the regular session in January.

Disposing of rumors that he planned a trip to Hawaii with other members, Martin said that months ago he tentatively accepted an invitation to visit the islands in November. This plan, however, has been abandoned.

"I will do everything I can to keep Congress in session as long as President Roosevelt considers that an emergency exists," said Martin. "If the President considers that an emergency is upon us, then it is the duty of Congress to be on the job. I will oppose a motion to adjourn the House when the neutrality issue is disposed of, under these circumstances."

Administration leaders already have made plans to end the special session. They are hopeful that the neutrality issue can be disposed of by Nov. 11—Armistice Day—in both Houses and Congress can adjourn until the regular session opens Jan. 3.

Repealists Seek To Ease Ship Ban

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP) — Senators who drafted the arms embargo repeal bill called a meeting today to work out a modification permitting American vessels to continue to trade with outlying possessions of belligerents considered safe from submarine attacks.

As the measure was drawn, American ships would be prohibited under severe penalty from carrying cargoes or passengers to warring nations and their colonies in every section of the world.

Asserting that there was a "universal desire" to ease the ban without "substantial danger" to the lives of American seamen, Chairman Pittman (D) Nevada, asked a group of foreign relations committee members to consider a half dozen amendments.

The group included all the Democrats on the committee except Senator Clark of Missouri, a leading opponent of embargo repeal, and Harrison of Mississippi, who was ill when the bill was drawn.

"CASH AND CARRY"

Previously, Pittman had moved to quell opposition by proposing elimination of the provision permitting 90-day credits for belligerent purchases in this country. Thus the bill becomes a strict "cash and carry" measure.

Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, who wants all American shipping in the Pacific exempted from the "carry" prohibition, said that if the modification of the shipping clauses gave the President discretion to define the exempted zones, there was bound to be a fight.

There were indications, too, that Borah intended to raise a constitutional question as to whether the government had a legal right to restrict American shipping beyond the customary three-mile limit.

He was understood to have contended privately that there was no constitutional basis for such restriction, but that he was not going to press the point beyond making a record of it.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the majority leader, predicted a final vote on the administration bill "sometime next week" and passage by a good margin.

He refused to join Senator Connally (D.) of Texas, in a statement that the opposition was engaged in a filibuster.

Barkley said that a good deal of the debate had been "drawn out, but it has been pertinent and legitimate."

Senator Nye (R.) of N. D., an opponent of the bill, also took exception to Connally's filibuster remark.

Ford Ousts 40 Red Engineers

DETROIT, Oct. 18 (INS)—Forty Soviet Russian engineers and 11 "local Communists" were ejected from Henry Ford's River Rouge plant today on charges of attempting to bribe minor Ford officials to gain access to blue-prints of new engineering developments.

Personnel Director Harry Bennett said the engineers have been in the Ford plant nine years with the permission of Henry Ford to study American production methods.

He said they are members of the Autostroy Division of Amtorg Corporation, the Soviet American Commercial Agency.

Bennett charged the 11 Communists attempted to spread propaganda in the plant and that during the riot between Ford employes and members of the CIO's Automobile Workers Union in May, 1937, were inside the plant distributing leaflets.

Pope Deplores Soviet Menace

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Oct. 18 (AP)—Pope Pius declared today that "the enemies of God" were casting their "sinister shadow" over Europe in a more threatening way every day.

The Pope expre sed his concern in a public address to the new Lithuanian minister to the Holy See, Stanislau Girdvainis, whose country recently came under the influence of Soviet Russia.

The Pontiff said the Lithuanians showed their intention of remaining the "northern vanguard of Catholicism" even if "sacrifice becomes the necessary price for affirmation of the realization of such an ideal."

SUB HUNTERS REACH MYSTERY CRAFT LAIR

By JAMES F. McENANEY
Staff Reporter for the Evening American

SOMEWHERE IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC, Oct. 17 (By Radio to the American)—We passed today exactly over the spot where the mystery submarine we are seeking was seen for the first and last time.

We are two hundred miles east of Boston lightship, and directly in the middle of the North Atlantic steamship lane . . .

As this is written, the sea is empty around us, but we know that two Boston trawlers are within communicating distance. As a matter of fact Skipper Teddy Jonsson, our captain, has been in telephonic communication with them at intervals all day, exchanging fishing information, and seeking news for us.

SHIFT SYSTEM

Now that we are in the middle of what can be described as our hunting grounds, Eddie Stephan, the American photographer, and myself have worked out a shift system so that one or the other of us is always on the bridge with Captain Teddy.

With his fine, keen eyes glued to glasses the long hours roll away. With endless monotony the fishing goes on, day and night.

It takes ten minutes to set the nets, we trawl for an hour, and it takes another 15 minutes to hoist the nets aboard with power winches. Each catch is a new adventure, and the men are as eager as children to see what they have dredged up from 50 fathoms down.

The hour of trawling is devoted by the men to cleaning the fish captured in the haul, and by the time they hit the ice in the forward hatch they are practically ready for the table. The deck is then hosed off, and we are ready for another catch. We trawl at 5 knots.

NETS RIPPED

A school of sharks was around today and ripped the nets, which had to be repaired.

In the morning, planes were sighted, which we at first believed to be American. When they came closer, however, we saw the Canadian insignia, and knew that they were on the same hunt as we are. All foreign shipping has been warned by the Canadian government to be on the alert. Our flags are displayed 24 hours a day.

It is an unusually cold season, we are told, and, although the sun is shining, there is an icy breath in the air. There is a heavy swell, but not much sea. Eddie and I are really beginning to enjoy our adventure, and regretfully contemplate our return to shore.

The first below-zero temperature recorded this season in New England was registered at the Mount Washington weather station, where the thermometer read one below zero. Lowland cold spot was Greenville, Me., at 21, while in the Cape Cod cranberry bogs, the mercury hovered in the lower twenties.

Fair weather and rising temperatures were promised for tomorrow.

N. Y. 'Front' Costly, Can't Pay Alimony

Such was the picture painted of the people in the nation's greatest metropolis by Albert S. Brown, former millionaire North Shore socialite, in explaining in Salem probate court $480 alimony arrears.

Albert Brown

Brown, who lives in a swank Park ave. hotel, winters in Florida and drives a Rolls-Royce, declared he cannot afford to pay his divorced wife, Mrs. Beatrice Brown of Salem, $20-a-week alimony.

Even $10-a-week will be a definite financial strain to the one-time millionaire golf club owner who once was host to the Prince of Wales.

Brown, president of Brown's Letters, Inc., of New York, was held in contempt by Judge John A. Costello, but had his case continued indefinitely after he paid up $250. He was told the $20 weekly payments must be made from now on.

BLAMES IT ON WAR

It is the current European war, Brown testified, which has resulted in cancellations of orders which have put him "in the red," as far as business is concerned.

"It's true that I drive a Rolls-Royce," he testified, "and it's true that I spend the winter in Florida and entertain wealthy friends and live in a Park ave. hotel.

"But that all comes under the head of 'front.' It's business with me. Many New Yorkers are four-flushers and you have to be a four-flusher yourself to impress them.

"I'm the head of my business; in fact, I'm the whole business. So what I spend on myself I am spending for business. I only make about $4000 a year and I spend a little more than that on business and personal expenses."

MRS. BEATRICE BROWN

Brown smilingly testified that he was in debt—"only a bit, some $50,000."

"Any chance of your paying it?" he was asked by Atty. Judson Hannigan. "Oh, no, not at those figures," he answered.

Brown said that in order to comply with the court's order it would be necessary for him to move from his Park ave. hotel suite to a lodging-house.

"I'm sure my wife wouldn't want me to do that" he said. "It's been my home for so many years."

He said it was because of demands of business that he sent out Christmas cards last year which had been engraved at one of New York's most exclusive jewelry shops. Business also necessitated entertainment of his friends, he said.

CITES HUBBY'S BATH LACK IN SUPPORT PLEA

BROCKTON, Oct. 18—Her husband liked to sleep in his clothes, took infrequent baths and twisted her wrists.

This was the testimony of Mrs. Lillian N. Hayden of Bridgewater in her separate support petition brought before Judge Harry K. Stone in probate court against Maurice L. Hayden, chicken farmer.

She also testified that Hayden preferred to be with his chickens at the time of the birth of their second son and later questioned the child's paternity.

Hayden has petitioned the court to order that he is living apart from Mrs. Hayden, his second wife, for justifiable cause. He was a principal a few years ago in an unsuccessful May-December romance.

Hayden was divorced from Mrs. Edith C. Bassett, 68, wealthy Bridgewater property owner, in 1936. He married her when he was 24 and she 57. The marriage lasted 11 years.

Shaw Denies Guilt In $15,000 Auto Suit

Artie Shaw, the "king of swing," was in the spotlight in a new role today, as he took the witness stand in Norfolk Superior Court to defend himself in a $15,000 damage suit growing out of an automobile accident in Brookline last March 5.

The suit was brought by Thomas Griffin of Brookline, who claimed he was struck by Shaw's car and severely injured.

Although the plaintiff's case had not been heard, Shaw was allowed to testify out of turn, in order to get back to New York, where his band is opening in a hotel Friday night.

The band leader said he had played for a dance at Wellesley on the night of the accident, and was on his way back to Boston when he stopped for a red light at Boylston and Cypress sts., Brookline.

"I had just started my car, and was traveling at about 25 miles per hour when Griffin stepped in front of the car, about 15 feet away," the swing leader testified.

"I swerved in an effort to avoid him, but the street was wet, and the car skidded and struck him."

After his testimony, Shaw left immediately for New York. The case continued with the plaintiff offering medical evidence as to the extent of his injuries.

National Guard Doubles Drills

Authority was received today by Adj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson from the National Guard Bureau of the war department to double drills of the National Guard in this state. The number of paid drills per month will be increased from four to eight during the period from Oct. 15 to Jan. 31.

"This has the effect of doubling the pay of enlisted men of the National Guard as they are paid for each drill they attend," said Gen. Erickson. "This makes it possible for the enlisted men to receive from $8 to $33.60 per month.

"The war department directive also provides for week-end training periods, with pay, to be conducted by organizations in the vicinity of their home stations."

Britain 'Admits' Gold Sent Nazis by Soviet

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—A British government spokesman today gave official support to reports that Russia has been sending gold to Germany.

Sir Alfred Knox, Conservative, asked in the House of Commons whether the government's attention had been drawn "to the fact that a consignment, said to be a first consignment, of 17½ tons of gold, had been transferred by the Soviet government to Germany."

Foreign Affairs Undersecretary R. A. Butler replied:

"Yes, sir, the Foreign Secretary has reason to believe that this report is not without foundation."

The British press has printed repeated reports that Germany was receiving Russian gold under a deal by which she ordered withdrawal of Germans from the Baltic sea.

(Editor's Note—If the "tons of gold are avoirdupois tons, 17½ tons of gold would be worth upwards of $40,000,000. If the "tons" were 2000 pounds troy weight the value of the gold would be around $15,000,000.)

ACCORDING to her personal physician, Mrs. Millicent Rogers Balcom, heiress to the Standard Oil millions, has entered Doctors' Hospital in New York for a two-weeks' rest.

Brave Leukemia Boy Loses Fight to Live

Loser in a brave fight which lasted 18 months and subjected him to 26 blood transfusions, 12-year-old Charles De Felice died today at his home in Chestnut st., Chelsea, victim of the dread leukemia.

Funeral services will be held Saturday for the youngster, who shuttled cheerfully between his home and Chelsea Memorial Hospital for borrowed blood to give him borrowed time.

Young Charles' last visit to the hospital was 10 days ago, when the white corpuscles in his blood again were winning over the red and it was necessary to give him his 26th transfusion.

Again he rallied after the infusion of new blood, but as in previous transfusions, the uplift was but temporary and was of lesser strength than the one previous.

The boy became ill 18 months ago with fainting spells and Dr. William Paris of East Boston was called. He ordered Charles removed to Beth Israel Hospital, and there the boy was given several transfusions, the first by his brother, James, 11.

Later he returned home and began to pick up. Then he had a sudden relase and was returned to the hospital, where more transfusions were given, mostly by relatives and friends.

Again and again this was repeated, except that treatments were given at Chelsea Memorial Hospital, and during all the boy's illness his father, James De Felice, 35-year-old house painter, virtually pauperized himself in the attempt to save his son, one of four children in the family.

Hail 'Old Timers' Of Auto Industry

Old-timers in Boston's automobile industry—all with more than 30 years' service—gathered at Horticultural Hall today to depict the mighty strides made in automobiles since the first show was held here in 1901.

There, they mounted bicycles, horsedrawn cabriolets and autos of ancient vintage for a parade to the Hotel Lenox where leaders in the industry gathered for the Pioneer luncheon.

AUTOS PARADE

In charge of the parade and the Pioneer luncheon, the highlight of the day, was Charles S. Henshaw of the Boston Automobile Show committee.

Automobile dealers throughout the city had high praise for the show and its results.

Four reasons were attributed to the success of the showroom displays being held this year. They included an opportunity to show models in a leisurely manner not permitted when all dealers were operating under one roof; the chance for quick appraisal; immediate demonstration and the absence of overcrowding.

DISCUSS SHOW

Among leading automobile men, the following comments on the new type show were given:

Allen Fay of Chrysler: "The attendance has been excellent and we would not consider going back under one roof."

J. M. Ballou of Packard: "Sales the first day this year were double those a year ago on opening day."

D. T. Hersey of Pontiac: "Results are better than ever before."

A. L. Danforth of Cadillac: "Attendance with us has been three times that of last year, with sales higher as well."

W. P. Naylor of Dodge: "Sales are 30 per cent higher than last year."

Howard Walsh of Chevrolet: "We have taken a lot of orders."

13 Heirs to Split $300,000 Legacy

When Mrs. Sophie West of Salem drew up her will last July she thought of last minute bequests of $2000 each to three local organizations "if there is any residue."

All three will get the bequests it developed today when approval of the will in Essex Probate Court disclosed the "residue" amounted to $300,000. As a result of the will containing no residuary clause, 13 heirs-at-law will share the big balance. Mrs. West died Sept. 22.

MOTHER IN DEATH RACE

Rising from her sick bed in Holyoke, an ill mother today made a dramatic 100-mile airplane dash from Westfield to Boston in 42 minutes, then rushed to the side of her son in City Hospital where he lay near death from auto crash injuries.

The youth, John J. Bresnahan, 23, insurance salesman and recent Boston University graduate, was crushed in the wreckage of his car.

Bresnahan received a crushed skull and internal injuries.

Because the brain operation required as a last means to save the youth's life is extremely dangerous, City Hospital officials required written permission to perform it.

Mrs. Bresnahan, recovering from a long illness, and another son, Thomas, left Barnes Airport in Westfield by chartered plane.

Others hurt in the crash were:

GRACE CUSTER, 23, of East Newton st., South End,

CLAIR HIGGINS, 21, Madison st., Dedham.

DONALD RICHARDSON, 22, of Williams, st., Atlantic.

Turkey's 'No' Dims Reds' Hope of Pact

ISTANBUL, Oct. 18 (AP)—The possibility of a Soviet Russian pact with Turkey dimmed today in the wake of Prime Minister Refik Saydam's assertion that Russian demands had proved contrary to Turkish policy in the Dardanelles.

Reporting to a parliamentary group of the Republican People's party, Saydam declared at Ankara last night that three weeks of discussion in Moscow had proved fruitless.

The prime minister said that Russian proposals were contrary to Turkish security, failed to compensate her for obligations she was asked to assume and were incompatible with Turkey's previous commitments to Great Britain and France.

He added, however, that despite the breakdown of negotiations, relations between Turkey and Russia remained friendly.

Meanwhile it was reported that formal signing of a Turkish pact with Britain might be expected this week—possibly Thursday or Friday. The agreement would bind Turkey and Britain to fight together in event of war in the Mediterranean.

There is a similar agreement with France, whereby Turkey obtained the 10,000-square-mile area of the Hatay Republic, formerly a part of France's Syrian mandate.

CURB TYPHOID OUTBREAK

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 18 (AP)—Dr. George E. James, deputy superintendent of health in Providence, said today an outbreak of typhoid among students and other persons connected with the football team at Providence College appeared to be under control.

Bulletins

PARIS, Oct. 18 (INS)—The first food rationing in France since the beginning of the war was announced by the Journal Officiel today. Decrees were published stipulating no beef, mutton or veal can be sold or served in restaurants on Mondays and that no beef can be sold or served on Tuesdays.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 18 (INS)—A German pursuit plane compelled a British machine—believed to be a reconnaissance craft—to make a crash landing near the Dutch frontier Monday night, according to a report from Oldenzaal today. The three British airmen, one wounded by machine-gun fire, were saved.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Mexican government petroleum agency was reported in informed quarters today to have started negotiations to purchase two German tankers which took refuge in Mexican waters at the outbreak of the war, the Emmy Friedrich and the Tine Asmussen.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Netherlands government asked Parliament today for 2,000,000 guilders (about $1,000,000) to provide anti-aircraft defenses for the Netherlands West Indies Islands of Curacao and Aruba.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Oct. 18 (AP)—Lithuania's new minister to the Holy See, Stanislau Girdvainis, presented his credentials today to Pope Pius XII, restoring normal relations with the Vatican broken off five years ago.

CAIRO, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Egyptian Parliament has ratified emergency powers for King Farouk's government to implement wartime support for Great Britain as required by the 1936 British-Egyptian treaty.

U-Boat Sailors His Guests at Dinner

BERLIN, Oct. 18 (AP)—Adolf Hitler today received Commander Prien and his submarine crew, credited with sinking the British battleship Royal Oak in Scapa Flow, naval base north of Scotland. He awarded Prien Germany's highest war decoration, the Grand Cross of the Iron Cross.

The reception was the high point in a gala day in Berlin for the submarine men.

Meting the men in his private study, Hitler heartily shook hands with each man and thanked them in the name of the German nation.

Present at the meting was Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, who yesterday presented the men with iron crosses for their successful raid on Saturday.

Before the reception by Hitler the men were cheered by an enthusiastic rain-drenched crowd as they paraded in open cars from Templehof airdrome to the chancellery.

"TRUST IN VICTORY"

Hitler said the crew's achievement "strengthened the entire German nation in the imperturbable trust in victory." He described their deed as the "proudest" which a submarine could accomplish.

After Prien related in detail his Scapa Flow experience, Hitler entertained the crew at a private dinner.

The British battleship Royal Oak was torpedoed and sunk last Saturday at Scapa Flow, where the German fleet was scuttled in surrender at the end of the World War.

Prien expressed amazement that his submarine had been able to pass British submarine traps.

RETURN BY PLANE

The crew arrived by plane from the unnamed port which they reached yesterday.

Hitler had placed his personal plane at the disposal of the crew to bring them to the capital.

Numerous officers of the navy, army and airforce assembled at Templehof to greet the sea fighters.

In a brief ceremony the chief of the submarine staff welcomed them and congratulated them on behalf of Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and the navy.

"Another glorious leaf has been added to the book registering unforgettable U-boat deeds of the World War," he said. "You proved once again that the unbending will to do is decisive—not the size of the military equipment."

The German population was given one more reason for rejoicing. Beginning next Monday, the press announced, weekly butter rations will be increased from 80 grams (2.82 ounces) per person to 112 grams (3.95 ounces).

810 Lost, 424 Survive, Latest Royal Oak List

LONDON, Oct. 18 (INS)—A total of 810 officers and men was lost when the British battleship Royal Oak was torpedoed by a daring German submarine in Scapa Flow, the admiralty announced today. Survivors totaled 424.

Royal Oak Sinking Alarms British

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—British military experts today rated the submarine torpedo a more deadly weapon than Germany's air force.

The London Times called the sinking of the Royal Oak at anchorage "a disturbing incident, providing grave matter for investigation of the naval court of inquiry which is now sitting."

The Daily Express bluntly told its 2,500,000 subscribers:

"The Scapa Flow affair is a disgrace. This disaster is inexcusable."

TYPHOON KILLS 38

TOKYO, Oct. 18 (AP)—Newspaper dispatches from Kagoshima today reported 38 persons dead, 33 missing and scores injured in a typhoon.

some time ago in expectation that Germany would launch an offensive after mopping up in Poland, was not disclosed.

Reports of French advances in the early weeks of the war indicated they had penetrated so far as seven miles into German territory, cleaning out scattered Nazi pillboxes and minefields. Before retreating, it was said, they laid out mines of their own to impede German operations.

Nazi Battle Seen Cover for Big Drive

BASEL, Switzerland, Oct. 18 (AP)—Rear areas on both sides of the western front seethed with activity today in the wake of German thrusts which Swiss observers believed were intended to divert attention from preparations for a bigger push.

These observers said the offensive, when it comes, probably will be directed against the Wissembourg-Lauterbourg-Rhine triangle near the middle of the German-French frontier.

For the third successive day and night, it was reported, the Germans continued to concentrate troops and offensive material at Karlsruhe and other points in the strategic Lauterbourg sector.

F. D. Backs Stand Of Scandinavians

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (INS)—President Roosevelt today declared in a message to King Gustav of Sweden that the United States and other American republics "support the principles of neutrality" laid down by the Scandinavian nations now in session at Stockholm.

It was the second time within a week that the President served notice on the world powers that this government was following with deep interest moves on the European checkerboard which might violate the independence of the Scandinavian countries.

EXPRESSES SYMPATHY

Mr. Roosevelt last week addressed a note to Moscow asking the Soviets to do nothing to disturb the peaceful relations between Russia and Finland.

Today, Mr. Roosevelt took the occasion of the Scandinavian conference at Stockholm to express sympathy for objectives of the meeting. His message was addressed to King Gustav V of Sweden. It said

"The conference of the Nordic states convened by Your Majesty in Stockholm will be followed with deep interest by the government and the people of the United States.

BACKS NEUTRAL AIMS

"Under the circumstances which exist this government joins with the governments of the other American republics in expressing its support of the principles of neutrality and order under law for which the nations represented at the Stockholm conference have throughout their stiroy taken a consistent stand."

Mr. Roosevelt, it was learned, took the step with the moral support of the 21 American republics which recently held a neutrality conference at Panama. It was reported that Argentina initiated the proposal that President Roosevelt send the message to the Stockholm meeting.

Parley Opens In Stockholm

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 18 (AP)—The kings of the three Scandinavian states and the President of Finland opened their conference today on problems which face the northern neutral countries as the result of the European war.

The visiting heads of state, King Haakon of Norway, King Christian of Denmark and President Kyosti Kallio of Finland, were welcomed in brief ceremonies devoid of military display in harmony with the peace policy long associated with the Scandinavian nations.

The formal opening session of the conference was held in a reception room of the capitol.

NAZIS O.K. SPREAD OF RED RULE

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Oct. 18 (INS) Nazi Germany abandoned the Scandinavian states to Russian domination today, rejecting all suggestions that the Reich should block further Soviet expansion in the north.

While military headquarters claimed a further French retreat on the western front, authoritative political circles announced that if Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland become vassal states of Soviet Russia, they are merely reaping their own reward and the matter is no concern of Germany.

"HAD THEIR CHANCE"

The Scandinavian and Baltic states, it was said, had their opportunity to line up with Germany in the past, but turned it down.

"The question of division of spheres of interests in the Baltic and Scandinavian regions between Russia and Germany does not arise," a spokesman said.

"The question is merely one of reorientating future relations between Russia and the northern states in view of the new political situation.

"Regulation of such relationships is a mater for Russia and the individual states and is no concern of Germany, which is continuing normal relations with all friendly regimes.

WONT CURB SOVIET

"Following establishment of proper relations with Russia, Germany interests herself in the north onl to the extent that these countries will follow the example of the Reich and achieve friendly relations with the Soviets."

The same quarters rejected suggestions that Germany should block Russia from Scandinavian domination.

BRITAIN SEES NEUTRALS' O.K.

By CHARLES A. SMITH

LONDON, Oct. 18 (INS)—Neutral approval of the Franco-British war aims was claimed by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in his weekly report to the House of Commons today.

Eight Nazi planes have been shot down over the British coasts within the last 18 hours, Chamberlain disclosed, without the loss of a single R. A. F. plane.

Germany made no reply to his last week's speech rejecting Adolf Hitler's peace offer, the Prime Minister said, "So I have nothing to add."

"The vast bulk of comment and nearly all shades of political color in neutral countries," he said, "have shown full appreciation of the attitude of the allied governments.

"It is evident that the inconveniences that war inevitably brings to all non-belligerent countries have not obscured the fundamental issues at stake ,determination of which must affect for good or ill the material welfare of all neutral people no less than belligerents."

Describing the war situation, Chamberlain said

"The British expeditionary force has finally overtaken an allotted sector of the French line. All divisions are now in position.

"Understanding between the Anglo-French higher commands is complete.

"Since I last spoke, activities have been unremitting both in attack and defense in the air and on land and sea. We destroyed eight enemy planes over our own coasts in the past two days without losing a single machine."

REGRETS SEA LOSSES

Chamberlain expressed regret over the "severe losses" sustained by officers and men of the Royal Navy, but claimed that the German U-boat campaign had failed to interefete with trade.

"A heavy toll has been taken of U-boats," he said.

German attacks on British naval bases were "fully expected" Chamberlain said, and he sharply criticized the ethics behind German claims of warship sinkings which he branded as "fantastic inventions."

"It is untrue that the Hood, Repulse or Ark Royal suffered the least damage," he said.

"The people of this country are resolute enough to bear bad news. The government has not hesitated to publish the full extent of any losses sustained."

up of the socially-conscious corps.

(Von Fritsch, who remained in the army without a command, was killed Sept. 23 in the siege of Warsaw.)

Gen Ludwig Beck resigned last October because he refused to see eye to eye with Hitler, it was reported, on the Austrian and Czechoslovak occupations.

Sir Nevile's report to Lord Halifax added that after the Von Blomberg denouement of February, last year, "Herr Hitler became more and more shut off from external influences and a law unto himself."

SCORNS ADVICE

Hitler decided upon war without consulting any advisers, Sir Nevile said, observing:

"The tragedy of any dictator is that as he goes on, his entourage steadily and inexorably deteriorates. For lack of freedom of utterance, he loses the services of the best men.

"All opposition becomes intolerable to him. All those therefore bold enough to express opinions contrary to his views are shed onh by one, and he is in the end surrounded by mere yes men whose flattery and counsels alone are endurable to him."

Of the Polish invasion, Sir Nevile said:

"Millions of Germans had begun to long for a more peaceful existence. Guns instead of butter were becoming more and more unpopular except with the younger generation, and Hitler may well have wondered what might happen to his Nazi revolution if its momentum were allowed to stop.

"Moreover, the financial and economic position of Germany was such that things could scarcely continue as they were without some form of explosion, internal or external.

"Of the two alternatives, the most attractive from the point of view of his growing personal ambitions and those of the clique nearest to him was war."

largest cutters in the service and recently moved in from Pacific waters for the "neutrality patrol," were hastening to the rescues.

Which cutter was going for which ship, however, was not reported, but both carry medicinal supplies requested by the President Harding and capable of accommodating many persons in addition to their regular crews.

It was believed, however, that the cutter Hamilton was proceeding to the collier Blairbeg, which she could reach by 2 p. m. today, this time being given in a radio message from the cutter.

The Hamilton also advised that the steamer Washington is proceeding toward the Blairbeg and could reach the helpless vessel in 16 hours.

Meanwhile the steamer Fort Townshend, of British registry, was likewise reported steaming to the aid of the disabled Elairbeg, with an estimate of 13 hours to elapse.

The President Harding, a 13,869-ton, 516-foot vessel, sailed for New York from Le Verdon, France, on Oct. 11.

Two days later she picked up the crew of the torpedoed freighter Heronspool, 300 miles off the Irish coast, and proceeded for the United States with the survivors on board.

The President Harding also went to the aid of the French tanker Emile Miguet, another war casualty, but the crew had put off in boats before the liner's arrival and were picked up by another craft.

The disabled collier Blairbeg is a sister ship of the collier Blairlogie, torpedoed Sept. 11 off the Irish coast, after leaving Boston and Portland, Me., with a return cargo of scrap iron.

300 Saved; British Ship's Fate in Doubt

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Three hundred persons from the British steamship City of Mandalay have been picked up in the Atlantic by the American freighter Independence Hall, the commission last night announced.

A terse message from Capt. C. J. McKenzie of the Independence Hall conveyed news of the rescue to the maritime commission last midnight, but left unanswered the question of what had happened to the British ship.

Captain McKenzie reported that the survivors were picked up 500 miles west of the French coast yesterday. The Independence Hall, which was en route from Bordeaux to the United States with a load of Americans, belongs to the Maritime Commission and is operated by the American France line.

Maritime registers list the City of Mandalay as a ship of 7028 tons operated by the Ellerman Lines, Ltd., out of Glasgow.

Captain McKenzie sent word of the rescue to the commission's representative in London, who relayed it here. He gave no details of the rescue.

Think All Saved On Sunken Liner

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Operators of the steamer City of Mandalay said today in an account passed for publication that their only information on the vessel was that she had been attacked and sunk in the Atlantic.

From the number of survivors reported rescued by the American freighter Independence Hall—300—the operators conjectured that there were few, if any, casualties.

(In Hongkong, however, agents for the steamer said she left there bound for the United Kingdom by way of Le Havre with a normal crew of 90 men and 42 passengers, which is the license limit for this type of cargo ship. The agents said they were uninformed of any extraordinary passenger additions en route.)

In her divorce petition Mrs. Thompson said she and her husband never had lived as man and wife.

First Lady Weighs Neutrality Outlook

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 18—I see in the morning paper that the question of credits in the Neutrality Bill, which has been so inexplicable to a great many people, has been taken out of the Administration's bill. It would have been possible under the law as originally drawn for the President to extend credit up to 90 days to belligerents making purchases in the United States and transporting goods in their own ships, whereas on a straight cash-and-carry basis, the governments will have to pay immediately.

This plan has now been substituted and it looks as though the Administration, though barring American ships from Europe's danger zones, will allow free travel in the Pacific and Indian Oceans as well as in the South Atlantic.

It is a curious thing how much we desire to be kept out of war and yet, as soon as staying out entails a loss in some financial line, we immediately have to make concessions because whatever else happens some people are always sure to feel that their pockets must be saved.

If these provisions pass, certain rights which would be ours under straight international law are, of course, given up by Americans.

(Mrs. Roosevelt's regular column, My Day, from which the above is an extract, appears on Page 20.)

Hooton Would Send Bandits to Trenches

By EARNEST A. HOOTON
Professor of Anthropology, Harvard University
Written for the AP Feature Service

I think that mankind might derive a biological benefit from the present war, if only it could be conducted with an eye upon the conservation of human resources.

To this end, active service for men of 45 years and older ought to be substituted for the conscription of youth. This would eliminate wastage and diminish the subsequent cost of old age pensions and bonuses for veterans.

However, as an exception to these age limitations the shock troops would be recruited from our hordes of recidivist criminals who are usually of present "military age." The incorrigible young toughs who use firearms and bombs against a peaceable society ought to do well in the trenches.

WOULD INCLUDE DIPLOMATS

Apart from them, new standards of mental and physical fitness for combatant duty should be established. These would consist of all of the defects for which men are at present exempted from fighting. This, a man would be accepted only if he had an incurable disease, serious congenital deformity, or an I. Q. below 100.

Regiments of sciziophrenes, paranoics, and manic-depressives would also be organized, backed by huge labor battalions of morons and imbeciles. All statesmen and diplomats who concoct wars would be required to lead reconnoitering parties, as did the late Gen. Werner von Fritsch.

Airplanes should not be used in this eugenic war, because all of the persons on whom bombs ought to drop would be in the army within artillery range, and not in the civilian centers.

FOR 25 years Earnest A. Hooton has kept Harvard and the reading public seething, as a professor of anthropology without inhibitions and with humor. His latest book, "Twilight of Man," elaborates his theory that man is on the decline. In this article the professor, who has been crying doom, sees a chance in the war to save mankind.

"WAR TO END WAR"

This would be veritably "a war to end war." If the combatants finished it by finishing themselves, there would be no need for peace negotiations, because both sides would have won, having got rid of their respective armies. Civilization, freed of the blight of the anti-social and the biologically unfit, would blossom anew.

Of course I am only a crackbrained anthropologist, and the masters of our destiny are too wise to conduct a war on the lines I have laid down. They do it the other way round. The fittest and best of the nations are sent out to be killed, and the trash stays at home to breed more trash and plan more wars.

I forgot to say that I think I should also include for front line service all persons suffering from hereditary and progressive myopia. This provision would make me eligivle for a heroic death and would hearten a lot of book reviewers.

Tasty Fall Puddings

By MARTHA LEE

The name "pudding" was first given to sausage, and "white" and "black" used to denote the variety. The earliest puddings were done up in bags and boiled. Then steaming came in, followed by our easy, modern baking; the Yorkshire and the Sussex puddings—used with meat as the main course—gave way to puddings served as dessert.

Now pudding covers a multitude—not of sins but of virtues—and while usually made with flour or cereals or crumbs, it needn't be.

Your best bets for fall puddings are fruit and nuts—any batter is better with nuggets of nuts for the molar to find

DATE-BRAZILIAN PUDDING

1 cup flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 cup (½ pkg.) dates, sliced
1 cup coarsely chopped Brazil nuts
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Mix sliced dates and chopped nuts through flour with the finger tips Add sugar.' Beat egg; add milk and vanilla. Stir this mixture into dry ingredients. Mix and turn into individual buttered baking dishes. Place baking dishes in a pan, surround with hot water to the depth of 1 inch. Cover. Bake in slow oven (275 deg. F.) 2 hours. Serve with whipped cream or sauce.

PEANUT BUTTER BREAD PUDDING

2 cups milk, scalded
½ cup peanut butter
½ cup cold milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla

Soak bread in scalded milk 15 minutes. Place peanut butter and cold milk in bowl, and whip with rotary beater until smooth. Combine egg, sugar, salt and vanilla To bread mixture add peanut butter and egg mixtures and blend. Turn into buttered baking dish, place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 1 hour. Serve with cream or hard sauce topped with grated nutmeg. Makes 6 portions.

BANANA COTTAGE PUDDING

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
½ tsp. vanilla extract
4 to 5 ripe bananas, sliced

Custard sauce

Use ripe bananas (yellow peel flecked with brown). Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat shortening until creamy. Add sugar gradually and beat well. Add vanilla. Add egg and beat until light and fluffy. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Turn into a well-greased pan 8x8x2 inches and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 1 hour, or until pudding is done. Cut into squares in pan. Serve hot. Cover each serving with banana slices and pour your favorite custard sauce over pudding.

CUSTARD SAUCE

2 eggs, slightly beaten
¾ cup sugar
Dash of salt
1½ cups milk
½ tsp. vanilla

Combine eggs, sugar and salt in top part of double boiler, stir in milk and place over boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats the spoon. Remove, add vanilla and chill. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

Coiffures for Famous Women

PERHAPS you have yet to make your mark in the career world . . . perhaps you're there already . . . whichever, you can't but help but be keenly interested in the new hair-dos created for three famous Boston women. They were styled by a well-known Boston coiffeur and have simply everything! There's the adorable cap of tiny baby curls, called "Li'l Angel," worn by the sculptress herself, who is none other than Margaret Matson, who sculps and works at fashion from her home in Bangor, Maine. She signs her work "M. Petra M." It's at the top. Left, abetted for effect by her intriguing gold hoop earrings, is Eleanor Early's coiffure, swept back and up, low in back. Among her books is "Ports of the Sun," and the one shortly to appear, "Lands of Delight," another West Indies travel book. Don't you feel the excitement, the adventure of it all, the sweep of her coiffure? Lower right, Mrs. Edith M. Logan, business woman and North Shore hostess. Her curled, swept-up do is called "Entre Acte." If you'd like to learn the name of the coiffeur and shop which sponsors these new hair styles, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write.

You Can Be Beautiful

Spirit of Romantic South

By ARLINE GOULD

SHE'S A WINSOME gal this Scarlett, and in spite of being over-publicized, her charm endures. It'll endure for you . . . and net you many a pretty compliment for the aura of sweet scent you bring whereever you go . . . if you use the newest perfumed cologne, which has been dedicated that siren-ish one.

And after you've finished with all the perfumed cologne, you'll remember her . . . because the bottle turns into a decorative item, one worthy of your knick-knack hanging shelf or cabinet. Or you might invest in two bottles (what have you got to lose, the whole thing is only a dollar) and turn them into a pair of dressing lamps!

You see, the container is fashioned of glass and plastic into a quaint figurine, almost ten inches high. In the huge, belled skirt is the cologne, and gilt plastic is molded to look like waist drapery, shoulders and head.

Just as varied in personality as the girl herself is the cologne, which is to be had in two versions, one called "bittersweet," the other, "flirt." One is a tantalizing fragrance which with a single breath is unbearably sweet, then with the second is tangy and fresh. The other is capricious, gay and light.

If you'd like to learn all about this gay and prettily done up eau de cologne, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Love

Finds Her High Hat

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

How can I get acquainted with her? Her attitude is cold, sophisticated, but perhaps she's that way to cover up bashfulness and self-consciousness. There's only one boy in the neighborhood who has managed to crash acquaintance. He has no good qualities, except that he has the use of a car. I'm not fortunate enough to have a car, but I can manage dates as regularly as he can.

None of the bunch knew how he got acquainted with her, but we'd like to know her too. She's 16 and I'm 18.

SNAPPY.

It oughtn't to be difficult to become acquainted with a miss of 16, even if she sports a cool and sophisticated armor. Perhaps, as you say, it's to cover up shyness and self-consciousness. Frequently that makes a girl high-hat.

How about school? If you all go to the same school, that constitutes an acquaintance. Does she go to a church or to a club, or a dancing class, a skating rink? Or what places does she frequent? And then again, haven't you some friend who is on speaking terms with this distant young lady, and who is willing to manage an introduction?

CHEESE and MACARONI WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

INGREDIENTS

1 c. macaroni, in 1-inch pieces
2 c. bottled milk or 1 c. evaporated milk and 1 c. water
1 c. soft bread crumbs
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 tsp. minced onion
2 tsp. minced parsley
6 eggs, well beaten
2 tsp. salt
2 c. grated American cheese
1 10½-oz. can condensed mushroom soup

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, combine with all the remaining ingredients but the soup; then turn into 6 or 8 well-greased large custard cups. Set in a pan of warm water and bake in a moderate oven of 325 deg. F. for 60 min. or until the custards set firm when a silver knife is inserted in the center. Meanwhile add ½ can of water to the condensed mushroom soup and heat well. A 4-oz. can of button mushrooms, drained, may also be added if desired. In serving, invert one of the cheese custards on each hot dinner plate, and top with some of the mushroom sauce. If a 16-oz. car of cream-of-mushroom soup is used for the sauce, instead of the condensed soup, melt 2 tbsp. butter or margarine, add 2 tbsp. of flour, and blend. Add the soup and heat thoroughly.

LAST YEAR Ferdinand the Bull and his favorite flowers were the inspirations for decorations at many a debutante party, and we've even attended a dinner where trained seals put on a vaudeville show between courses . . . but this season it's the beautiful proud white peacock which is providing the inspiration for some of the most fascinating party decorations . .

The artistic combination of white peacock feathers, intersprinkled with vivid blue larkspur and babies breath formed the centerpieces on the tables at the luncheon given for Alexandra "Sandy" Matz at the Cambridge Boat Club today . . .

The debutante's mother, Mrs. Charles Henderson Matz, and her grandmother, Mrs. Alexander McGregor, both of Brookline, were hostesses at the party . . . Sandy presided at a large table of her most intimate friends and the other guests sat about at small round tables facing her . . .

The novel favors were boutonnieres made of blue flowers mixed with tapering white cigarettes and encircled by frilly lace paper doilies, and each guest received a match case engraved with Sandy's name . . .

The debutante and her mother, who resemble each other very much and are both pretty blondes, chose gray costumes . . . Sandy's was of crepe with a short sleeved gray chenille sweater and a gray feather hat trimmed with coral velvet loops . . . Her corsage was of coral lilies and tuberoses . . . Mrs. Matz chose gardenias to contrast with her all gray outfit and Mrs. McGregor wore orchids with her black gown and hat . . .

Hostesses at the various tables included Sandy's younger sister, Patty Matz, Ann Tarbell who makes her debut tomorrow, Andy Vogel, Elizabeth Jenney, VeeVee Richard, Barbara Phippen, Margaret Fry . . . and among the many guests were Eleanor Frothingham, Eleanor Harding, Betsy Inches, Elizabeth Neilson, Susan Plummer, Beverly Pratt, Leslie Chase, Elizabeth Leonard, Sally Nichols, Martha Pervere, Polly Blodgett, Marietta Withington and Evelyn Ford . . .

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

WHY DOES CHILD CRAVE SALT? | WHAT IS CAUSE OF URTICARIA?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY
Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning food, sanitation, and health will be answered by Dr. Eddy only if stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice cannot be given, nor can samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, Director Good Housekeeping Bureau of Foods, Sanitation, and Health, 57th Street at 8th Avenue, New York City, N. Y.

Can you tell me why my little daughter, aged 6½ years, has what seems to me an unnatural appetite for salt? She begs for handfuls at all times of the day and eats it straight. She likes baking soda and Sal Hepatica equally well.
E. R. M.

The craving for foreign substances, including dirt, is not an uncommon occurrence in children, but this craving for salt is something that should be corrected. The human system requires only a small amount of salt a day—about a fourteenth of an ounce. If more than that is taken, it requires an increased amount of water to keep it in solution in the body tissues, and this tends toward an abnormal retention of water in the body. It also places certain burdens on the kidney in the matter of eliminations.

Hives Indicate Something Toxic

For years I have been troubled with urticaria (hives). I have had many skin tests, but so far as I know the only things tried other than food were hair, felt, and orris root. None of these gave any particular reaction. I have wondered whether the cream that I have used to alleviate sunburn, heat, and itching might aggravate the condition.
A. M. G.

It is a general impression that urticarias are due to some toxic substance absorbed into the blood Usually it is some food product which provides toxic material Sometimes it is a substance which is absorbed directly through the skin, and in some hair dyes and cosmetics there are ingredients which, while harmless to the great majority of people, produce in certain individuals a toxic effect.

It may interest you to know that the most satisfactory method of making these determinations to date is by utilizing an individual who can be sensitized to some substances that affect you through injection into his blood system of some of your blood serum. Such individuals are now available in certain hospitals which carry out these tests, and their employment in this capacity has revealed, in many cases, sensitizing substances which were not detectable by experiments on the affected subject himself.

Let Him Have His Tomatoes

One of our family, a man aged 29, is very fond of tomatoes. For the last two months he has eaten them for two meals every day. Will this lead to stomach trouble?
E. G. T.

You need not be afraid of stomach trouble. From what you tell me of the rest of the young man's diet, he is made a good selection in tomatoes as the very article of food which would supplement dietary deficiencies in other parts of his The fruit acid in the tomato will not do him any harm.

THE SEA RAIDERS

Dramatic Story of War's Lone Wolves of the Sea

By FRED PERKINS

LOVELY Tralee Bay, famed in Irish song and legend, was wrapped in fateful darkness the night of April 20, 1916.

To the northwest, outside the harbor entrance, the shadowy bulk of Inishtooskert Island loomed dim against a starless sky.

Howe to and almost invisible off the island's hidden shore lay the German sea raider Aud. And from her deck a tiny pinpoint of green light — a far-away, jewel-clear emerald glitter in the gloom flashed and faded, flashed and faded, flashed and faded!

A portentous signal that was. Had it reached the eyes for which it was intended, a blow tragically and prematurely struck for Ireland's freedom might either have been stayed altogether or struck with vastly greater and more effective force.

Roger Casement

For in the hold of the Aud, ready for delivery to the Irish nationalist army, were 20,000 rifles, 10 machine guns, hundreds of cases of bombs and millions of rounds of ammunition.

Secret and perilous landing of all these contraband arms was only awaiting personal leadership of Sir Roger Casement, hailed in Dublin as a self-sacrificing Irish patriot, reviled in London as arch-traitor to the Empire.

A U-boat, bringing Casement from Germany, was due to keep clandestine rendezvous with the gun-running sea raider in Tralee Bay, this April night, Good Friday eve.

The green light, flashed and dimmed, was to identify the Aud, distinguish her from a possibly lurking British patrol ship, give the U-boat captain a much-needed bearing in these strange and hostile waters.

The fear of death or capture, however, must have weighed heavy on the minds of the arms-loaded raider's officers and crew.

Well they knew enemy cruiser squadrons and destroyer patrols were combing all this coast for just such German prowlers as the Aud vessel. And the Aud's officers, at least, knew that under their feet, cased in concrete against the raider's keel was a high explosive blast charge, with electric detonator affixed—and the electric wire for firing it connected with a switch in easy reach for the hand of their grim-faced commander, German Naval Lieutenant Karl Spindler!

SPINDLER'S instructions from the German Admiralty were terse and unequivocal:

"Destroy your vessel, at any cost, rather than let her cargo fall into British naval hands."

So perhaps the green light on the raider Aud's deck wasn't flashed that night quite so long or quite as boldly as originally intended.

In any case, no U-boat periscope came gliding snakily through the murk.

Instead, at dawn, an armed British trawler, the Setter II, slid suddenly out of the Tralee Bay mist and hailed the raider peremptorily.

The Aud was flying the Norwegian flag. Her name and assumed nationality tag, "Norge," were painted on her side.

So her commander, while he kept a hand on his blast switch, allowed a Norwegian and English speaking junior officer to answer the British patrol vessel's inquiries.

Apparently easily satisfied, the Setter II soon went her way.

Desperately hoping to avoid any further such close calls, the gun-running raider quit the shelter of Inishtooskert Island, made her way out of Tralee Bay entirely and headed southwest down the Irish coast.

AS a matter of cold fact, however, the Aud had long since been hemmed in and encircled by her unseen foes. For once, at least, British naval intelligence had been a generous two jumps ahead of German plotting, from the very beginning.

For a full month, it had been known to the British that a German gun-running raider would attempt to land arms for Irish rebels, probably somewhere on the Kerry shore.

IRISH REBEL HEADQUARTERS—Failure of Sea Raider Aud to deliver German arms and ammunition to Irish Rebels wrote failure to the Easter Rebellion . . . in which the headquarters of the Irish Nationalists was wrecked like this in Dublin.

As the Aud had run the British North Sea blockade, heading up between the Faroes and Iceland to the Polar Circle, her commander had observed with temporary apprehension a strange vessel, resembling an armed merchantman, that seemed to be following him—almost convoying him — on his secret course.

When he finally lost this mystery vessel, he laid its presence to coincidence.

He wrote later in his memoirs:

"I must confess the conduct of this English auxiliary cruiser . . . was one of the greatest puzzles of my life and has remained so to this day."

Yet, he need not have been so persistently perplexed.

For Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, director of British Naval Intelligence in 1914, publicly dissipated the mystery. He said:

"We knew the Aud was coming. We watched her progress carefully. It didn't suit our purpose to have her halted, searched or captured in North Sea waters.

"To prove what her errand really was, we wanted to take her when she was ready to deliver the contraband cargo she carried. We wanted to find and seize her off an Irish harbor. And that was how the matter finally was accomplished."

By nightfall of Good Friday, April 22, 1916, Commander Spindler knew himself and his vessel to be hopelessly surrounded. There were smoke clouds of armed sloops bearing down on him from every point of the compass.

When the nearest of the patrol ships came alongside with the inevitable question, "Who are you and where bound?" Spindler's interpreter answered with every show of complete stupidity:

"Norwegian cargo boat Aud, bound for Genoa with a load of lumber and hardware."

It was so palpable a lie that the British officer aboard the H.M.S. Bluebell, which had halted the Aud, didn't bother to argue.

"Righto, Aud," he grinned. "Just you follow us along to Queenstown before we blow you out of water."

OTHER British vessels were on hand by this time, so resistance on the part of the German raider appeared unthinkable. The grim convoy of captors and captive started duly for the designated port.

All of a sudden, however, look outs on the Bluebell reported excitedly:

"Something wrong on the Aud, sir. Her men are launching life-boats."

Indeed they were, hastily and smartly. Last to quit the German raider was her white-faced commander, Lieut. Spindler. Just before he left his cabin he pressed the switch that led to the blasting charge in the sea raider's bottom.

And down to Davy Jones' locker went the 20,000 rifles, 10 machine guns, scores of cases of bombs and millions of rounds of ammunition which might have written a different and more tragic—ending to Dublin's Easter Rebellion.

By Lieut. Spindler's order, the German imperial ensign had been run up to the Aud's masthead, at the very moment she was abandoned. The commander and his men had all changed to German naval uniforms.

Their destruction of their vessel was thus a lawful act of war. And they surrendered themselves to the Bluebell with their status as combatants, not treason conspirators, definitely established.

Less fortunate was Sir Roger Casement. With two Irish companions, he made his way to shore near Tralee in a cockle-like boat launched just before daylight of Good Friday from the deck of the German submarine on which he had been a passenger.

Before he could reach Dublin or even learn of the failure of his ambitious gun - running scheme, so carefully planned in Berlin, he was captured by the British and was taken to England for trial.

Convicted of high treason, he was executed in the Tower of London.

The U-boat captain later reported he searched Tralee Bay for the Aud and had actually seen what must have been her vague outline in the dark shadow of Inishtooskert Island. But he had seen no green light flashing—and had quickly submerged, believing he was near a British patrol ship.

MANY once associated with Casement, the master plotter of German-fomented rebellion in Ireland, always believed Sir Roger would have been able to postpone the Easter uprising, had his original plan of arriving on the Aud succeeded.

As matters actually turned out, the revolt was summarily crushed, after a week of bloody fighting. What might have transpired—had the Aud's 20,000 rifles reached their destination—will long remain a subject for futile speculation.

The green light that flashed so brightly that night of April 20, 1916 against the shadowy bulk of Inishtooskert Island, wasn't destined to signal Ireland's freedom just then.

And when hard-earned Irish independence was finally and triumphantly won, it was happily without German sea raider assistance.

KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR
—Be Neutral—

THERE IS NOTHING more fatal to our peace than those Americans who spinelessly assert:

"We can't keep out of this war."

"We can't" is not an American term. "WE CAN!" made America what it is.

"WE CAN" were the words Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln used when they had a job to do.

We have a great job to do today—one of the greatest jobs that ever confronted a free people.

IT IS TO STAY OUT OF THE EUROPEAN WAR, TO KEEP OUR FREE INSTITUTIONS INTACT.

It is to REMAIN AT PEACE.

It is to DEFEND that peace.

And we CAN, we WILL do it!

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., gave us a strong present-day American credo when he said:

"It is our duty to stop this talk that we 'must' be drawn in, that we 'cannot' avoid it, that we must 'inevitably' come into any European war.

"If we say it often enough—if this fatalistic talk goes on—we will be drawn in.

"Instead of talking as though we were licked, we should stress the fact that we CAN STAY OUT, that we SHOULD STAY OUT, that we MUST STAY OUT, and begin at once the devising of constructive measures to KEEP US OUT.

"Much as I want peace in Europe, I shall never, for this purpose, vote to sacrifice the life of one single American soldier."

That's the AMERICANISM of the Founding Fathers, of the men who built the nation, of the men who said "WE CAN."

GOVERNOR SALTONSTALL challenges the American educational system to be "an oasis where confidence and hope can be restored to youth."

"An alert, intelligent and confident young manhood is the greatest bulwark for the preservation of our democracy and the safety of our nation," he says.

"To be impregnable from foreign foes, we must, first of all, have internal strength. Our own house must be in order.

"The teachers of tomorrow's leaders hold the key to that door of opportunity."

That is sound, American common sense. The impact of foreign ideologies have been too disturbing an influence in many of our schools and colleges.

The time has come, as the Governor wisely advises, for new and proper emphasis on AMERICANISM.

INADEQUATE LAWS that allow dope pedlars to escape the severe punishment their crimes warrant have been ignored too long.

Rightly and wisely, Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford condemns them and, passing sentence upon one offender, says:

"You are a menace. I would surely give you ten years if it were within my power to do so."

Judges do not write laws. They interpret and apply them. Authority to make the changes Judge Ford and other jurists want and ought to have is vested in Senators and Representatives in both the State and National legislatures.

Let us hope that more of these officials will soon wake up to the fact that the dope pedlar is a destroyer of human life and quite as dangerous to society as the man who kills with a revolver or the one who slays with a knife.

"LIFE BEGINS AT 40," says a distinguished novelist, but Dr. Helen E. Mitchell, research professor of home economics at Massachusetts State College, cannot agree.

The average life expectancy of a person over 35 has not been extended in the last two generations, she maintains.

DR. MITCHELL
She Fails to Agree

"In fact," she adds, "the life expectancy of men and women more than 55 years of age has actually decreased."

It may interest Dr. Mitchell to examine United States Life Tables and to learn that in the period between 1900 and 1902 the expectation of life was 48 years for men and 51 years for women, and that 30 years later the expectation increased to 59 years for men and 63 years for women.

Newspapers which reported Dr. Mitchell's remarks also reported the deaths of 92-year-old Henry L. Streeter of Brattleboro, Vt., who is survived by his twin sister; 93-year-old James A. Sawyer, Brighton, G. A. R. post commander, and 85-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Mendell of Newton.

Each had lived long and usefully after the 40 mark.

Hidden Currents

AN ogre stands upon the hill . . . to trap the breezes as they blow . . . and, having bent them to his will . . . upon their way he bids them go . . . But from their hidden currents he . . . derives new life and energy.

Around us hidden currents flow . . . I too, once stood upon a hill . . . with outstretched arms, and felt the thrill . . . of surging life and ruddy glow . . . that must be felt by the old mill.

March of Events -:- By BENJAMIN De CASSERES

THE BLAME for the rise of three such liberty-destroying rulers as Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini has been placed on almost every philosopher from Plato to Nietzsche.

But the great teacher of these three stranglers was Lycurgus, born about 2500 years ago somewhere in Greece.

It was Lycurgus who gave Sparta its code of laws, and thus created the pattern of all future slave-states, of which even Soviet Russia, Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy, as bad as they are, are mere shadows.

I have been reading of the incredible laws of Sparta in Dr. Will C. Durant's new monumental, brilliant and scholarly work, of nearly 800 pages, "The Life of Greece" (Simon & Schuster), a book as fascinating as his "Story of Philosophy," a book that you simply cannot do without if you want to know about Athens in particular, the greatest city-state that ever existed, a people (the Greek) to whom we owe almost everything mentally and spiritually that we possess today, including the alphabet.

But back to Sparta, the first Fascist-Nazi-Communist slave-state (and then some) in history.

HERE ARE A FEW things they did to Spartans, following the code of Lycurgus, according to Mr. Durant (and he gives ancient authorities for everything).

Only the physical body was considered. (The free mind was extinguished deliberately.) For this purpose all defective children were murdered. Wives were loaned to "exceptional men" so as to breed good soldiers. Youths were scourged till their blood stained the stones. Baths were rare—they softened the body. Until they were 30, men lived in military barracks.

DR. WILL C. DURANT
Blames Old Lycurgus

At 12, boys were deprived of undergarments—to accustom them to cold. They were taught, in preparation for war, to forage and steal. Everybody danced nude in public. Bachelors were forced to walk the streets naked in winter. If a man's stomach swelled too much he was banished for overeating. No travel was permitted, for that broadened the mind.

THE RESULT was that all the arts and sciences died in Sparta, and men welcomed death in war (and Sparta was always at war) because they looked with horror at their return to civil life under the dreadful laws of Lycurgus.

"Militarism absorbed Sparta," says Mr. Durant, "and made her, once so honored, the hated terror of her neighbors."

And thus will die, soulless and rotten, the countries of Communism, Fascism and Nazism today. That they do not carry down with them the great democracies depends on how mightily the democracies know how to defend themselves.

"The Life of Greece" is the finest historical book of the time. It is a story of universal import—a story for today, for a triple shadow of Spartan slavery lies over the world in the persons of Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini.

ABOVE ALL, the one thing I learn from Durant's "Greece," as from all the books of history I have ever read, is this:

Corruption, bribery, warfare and tyranny are universal.

And nations merely change names, for today England is Rome, France is Greece and Germany is Sparta.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

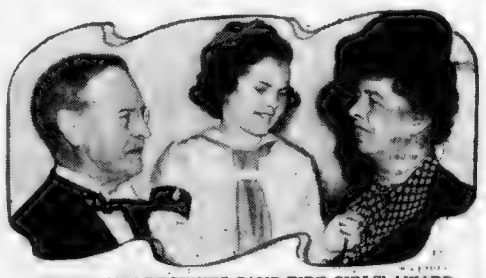
HYDE PARK, Oct. 18—It is grand to have such perfect October weather for these few days in the country. I took another ride through the lower wood. The air had just enough chill in it to make the horses want to go, so I enjoyed every minute of it.

I lunched at Vassar Alumni House and took with me Mrs. Elizabeth Von Hesse, who has had no opportunity to give me a voice lesson for nearly five months and never before heard me speak in public. I asked her to concentrate on all my failings in order to help me improve.

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau met us at the luncheon and we found a great many Poughkeepsie friends, as well as women of other sections of the country and from across the river. This lunch was the interlude in a day's conference. This non-partisan institute was run under the auspices of the Democratic County Committee to study the various social agencies of government.

I DID NOT ATTEND the morning session, but I understand the National Youth Administration work in this district was well described and that Vassar College was called upon to produce an expert on taxes.

Mrs. Saltford, the Republican County Vice-Chairman, remarked in her few words of greeting in the afternoon, that she realized with a shock how we were always asking our representative to cut down on taxes and at the same time insisting that they do numberless things which required more tax money.



FIRST LADY RECEIVES CAMP FIRE GIRLS' AWARD
Dr. J. E. Raycroft and Little Mary Byrne Make Presentation

After lunch, Dean Thompson of Vassar spoke on a general subject and then Mrs. Anna Rosenberg told of the amendments to the Social Security law. My subject was to deal with youth in general in this country.

It always seems to me dangerous for an older person to try to interpret what youth may think or feel on any subject, but I find myself having to do this frequently.

ON OUR WAY OUT, a French-woman spoke to me saying that she had been in Germany during the rise of the youth movement there and it had given her a fear of all organized youth. She did not fear Fascism among our youth, but she did fear Communism.

Of course, it is easy to understand this fear in France, where their reforms were so long delayed that the Communist Party became strong. Undoubtedly this has had a great effect upon the youth of the country, but I do not feel that we are in the same general situation.

I can only say that I trust our young people whom I have come to know well and believe they are working for the good of the whole people.

WHEN VINCENT SHEEAN first went to London he told his friend, Gordon Foster, that the man he was most anxious to meet was Lawrence of Arabia . . Two weeks later Foster invited Sheean to a cocktail party . . . Next day he asked: "Well, how'd you like Lawrence?" . . . But I never met him," Sheean protested . . "Oh, yes, you did," his host assured, 'that was Mr. Lawrence, the short man in the tweed suit. I introduced you to him" . . . "But he seemed so insignificant that nobody paid attention to him," Sheean lamented. "Why didn't you tell me that 'Mr. Lawence' was Lawrence of Arabia?" . . . 'He wouldn't let me," Foster explained. "He said he'd come only under those conditions, because as plain 'Mr. Lawrence' he knew nobody'd bother him."

Another interesting commentary on how to bring up a child when the warmongers have had their way is the difficulty Ruby and the child's nurse are having in getting it to eat good food . . . George Frazier, the Harvardian who is one of the few bona fide authorities on "swing," further discourages this pillar whose policy has been to bury, not to praise, the screech and yowl form of music . . . George says that "Jazz Information," a seven-weeks-old sheet devoted to swing and its eccentricities, has made such an amazing hit that both "Downbeat" and "Tempo," two other mags devoted to the subject, will both go semi-monthly instead of once a month . . . Bobby Hackett (speaking of swing) is now with Horace Heidt, and playing better than he ever has . . . This will add to the confusion of head-shakers who predicted the "sweet" format of the Heidt outfit would rout the Boston trumpet-player . . . We haven't had a chance yet to check as far west as the Flamingo Room, but if Teddy Bunn is with the Spirits of Rhythm currently holding forth at old Levaggi's, Boston has in its midst at present one of the truly great guitarists of the day.

MIRIAM HOPKINS BACK AT WORK

By Louella O. Parsons

Miriam Hopkins

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18 - Miriam Hopkins, just back a week from Reno where she obtained her freedom from Director Anatole Litvak, has checked in at Warners to co-star with Errol Flynn in "Virginia City." They tell me at Warners that this is official, Olivia De Havilland, who had already started fitting her wardrobe and testing makeup for this picture, is out because she plays a Southern girl in "Gone With the Wind," soon to be released, and Hal Wallis does not think it is a good idea for her to have two Southern roles in a row. Miriam sings and dances and when I registered surprise I was reminded that she used to be a musical comedy star and danced with the best of them until she broke her ankle.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Sonja Henie-Alan Curtis twosome no longer is a publicity stunt; Jack Oakie has gained back the forty-five pounds he lost but he doesn't care since he plays a heavy jowled dictator in the Chaplin movie and can stand a little flesh; Mary Healey and Franchot Tone are back together again and spent an evening dining at the House of Murphy and dancing at the night spots; Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan say they will marry soon but then you never can tell in Hollywood; Cary Grant has a lease on Constance Talmadge's beach house until May Randy Scott who has been living with him will probably take it off his hands. Meanwhile he is getting the Norma Talmadge house he bought in ship shape and it will either be a marriage to Phyllis Brooks or an announcement that they are already wed; Don Ameche's eight week holiday will be spent in South America; Tyrone Power, who met Annabella there, has sold him the idea; June Lang, the beautiful one, dining with Sidney Luft, car manufacture at Victor Hugos; Rudy Vallee reaches Hollywood early in November. No, it's not a picture date but a radio engagement that brings him here; Arthur Lubin's telephone calls are for Barbara Holmes, pretty Boston deb; Cesar Romero will spend a week's vacation at Coronado.

A FAR CRY from the tragic story of "Nurse Edith Cavell" to the gay musical comedy, "Irene." Yet that's the leap Anna Neagle takes in her next picture to be produced for RKO by Herbert Wilcox. This is the first modern story Miss Neagle, who has appeared as "Victoria the Queen," "Nell Gwynne" and many other historical characters, has made in five years. But she'll sing and dance and wear modern attire in "Irene."

DAILY STORY — Opportunity

OPPORTUNITY knocks but once, and when it knocked I didn't open the door. A few years ago at a beach party I was introduced to the loveliest little lady I had ever seen. She was a small, dark-eyed brunette about 18.

Throughout the summer and early fall we spent our evenings in each other's company. We went on gay moonlight sails, to smart summer theater parties and flower and horse shows.

But, like all good things, it came to an end much too soon. Believing as I did that before asking Marie to marry me I should be better situated financially, with a good home and money in the bank, I worked like mad all the next winter, always the first one in the office in the morning and the last one to leave in the evening.

But, because of my ambition, I neglected my little Marie and saw her less and less frequently, calling on her twice a week, then once a week, once every two weeks and finally, by spring, only once a month.

MEANWHILE, Marie was being courted by other admirers who were not as well endowed with this world's goods as I, but none the less ardent, with or without the almighty dollar.

There was one in particular, called Eddie, whom Marie became very fond of. He wasn't much to look at, dark complexioned, homely features, with a large, protruding nose and receding chin.

He didn't have a job and little chance of getting a good one. I couldn't see what Marie saw in him, but she really loved him, as I found out later.

In May I learned Marie and Eddie were to be married in June.

If only I had not been so slow, so intent on material things, making my business secure; night after night working till midnight and later. But all this time she was falling in love with Eddie.

They couldn't have gone out much; he was unable to afford it. What was he able to give her that I could not? I don't know, unless it was kindness, affection and tenderness, which evidently I lacked.

WHEN I RECEIVED the invitation to their wedding and reception I told myself that I would not go. I couldn't bear to see her going to the altar with anyone but me. But I did go. There never was a more beautiful bride than Marie.

The most difficult task of all was at the reception when I congratulated Eddie. It was so hard to be sincere, but I succeeded.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

WARSAW HAS FALLEN! Impossible to realize what they must have meant . . . those blurred and bloody weeks . . . that dumb, stunned waiting for the certain end. Forcing their feet through piles of putrifying dead. Reloading guns, with eyes gone blank and blind. Broadcasting "good news," with death bubbling in their throats. And knowing, all the while, "it wasn't any good"—it wouldn't, couldn't help.

Knowing that nothing would help . . . that must have been the worst of all they had to face. Not talking. Not thinking. Not reasoning why. Just knowing, yet going on. Fighting for something that had lost its name.

AND ALL THE TIME, A WORD WOULD HAVE SET THEM FREE! That's the incredible thing . . . the heart-breakingly glorious thing. They needn't have suffered. They needn't have starved. They could have gone clear of it all, WITH JUST A WORD.

AND NOW, OF COURSE, many will be calling them heroes—because that's the thing to do. But, beneath the praise, more will be wondering why they did it. "To throw away life like that . . . to suffer so needlessly . . . such a useless waste . . . poor fools . . . they must have been crazy!"

"A useless waste of life." Then so was Father Damien's . . . Socrates', Lincoln's, gallant Joan of Arc's—Edith Cavell's. They, too, could easily have saved themselves . . . And yet, like those at Warsaw, they went blindly on . . . not feeling flames, nor counting eating sores, nor shirking cups of hemlock . . . nor the cross's weight . . . nor bullets.

Not speaking of, nor thinking of the price—just sticking by the thing they came to do—because it seemed the best, the only way of life.

A "WASTED LIFE"—what is it? To LIVE, for your own profit . . . or to GIVE, for the whole world's gain? Naomi Lane Babson said something about that in her book—"ALL THE TOMORROWS." Jade, the doomed sister, cries—

"Life matters only because of what we do with it. You can waste 80 years as well as 20, and many people do so; others in two or three short decades make imprints that endure for many ages. How many men of 60—70—80—died, do you think, on the day that Christ was crucified? And were they better than he because they had lived longer? Who knows their names today? Old age is not the only thing worth living for. Death can be the triumph, life can mean defeat."

RENO Rendezvous

by LESLIE FORD

MR. MARTIN frowned a little. He wore a bow tie; slightly artistic but not really flamboyant. Just enough to make him look—with his iron-gray hair cut a little long and a little Byronic—the sort of older man that a lonesome, unhappy child, 300 miles from home, could safely confide in. The other members of his firm, I learned, looked like successful New York stock brokers, and were assigned to women somewhat older than Judy.

There was an Olympian quality to Mr. Martin's frown, and it was bestowed on me.

"You haven't come out, I trust, Mrs. Latham, to unsettle Judy's determination to go through with her action?"

I never, in the time I was in Reno, heard Mr. Martin, or any of his associates or colleagues, use the word "divorce."

"After all she's been through!" he added.

A note in his voice implied, with absolutely nothing he actually said to account for it, that Clem had made the poor girl's life an unmitigated hell and beaten her regularly every Saturday night.

"No," I said acidly. "But Mr. Dexter Cromwell has been murdered—and as my niece seems bound to be involved, considering their friendship, we both thought she'd better have advice from you."

It would be incorrect to say that Mr. Martin was literally rocked back on his heels. But figuratively he certainly was.

"Has been . . . what?" he gasped.

"Murdered," I said.

Nobody at police headquarters, apparently, had felt it necessary to tell Mr. Martin to cover up.

"Why . . . that's incredible! Why, I just lunched with him yesterday . . ."

Mr. Martin came to an incredulous and bewildered pause. It's always seemed odd to me that when perfectly assured people like him become suddenly unassured, they take refuge in such meaningless things.

"I know," I said. "We dined with him last night. He's dead just the same."

He turned aghast to Judy.

"They don't say . . .?"

"Not quite," I said. "They're going to shortly. Inasmuch as—for some totally inexplicable reason—the weapon he was killed with has been found in the dirty clothes basket in Judy's bathroom.—That's what we need you for."

Mr. Martin was a little pale, and more than a little upset. He wiped the perspiration off his forehead with an enormous white linen handkerchief.

"Well," he said. "I . . . I must admit this is a shock. Our business is confined almost exclusively to . . . domestic relations. This is most unusual."

"Well," I said, "it's unusual for Judy too."

He rallied hastily.

"Of course, Mrs. Latham. We certainly can take care of it—even if we have to retain outside counsel. Let me see."

He patted his brow again.

"Your course is to say absolutely nothing for the time being, Judy."

Judy looked at me, a little ghost of a smile lighting her autumny eyes.

"She's been very good at that so far," I said. "She may need you to see she still retains the privilege of saying nothing."

"No one is required by law to make statements incriminating to herself, Mrs. Latham."

"I know," I said. "The third degree has a good many possibilities. They don't necessarily have to use a rubber hose."

Mr. Martin's firm, I take it, knows little about the facts of life outside the marital relations. He was quite pained.

JUDY REFUSES

"You can leave that to me, Mrs. Latham."

"That's what I wanted to be sure of," I said.

He turned to Judy.

"You'd best make a clean breast of the whole business, Judy," he said. It was kindly but authoritative. He drew a chair up and sat down beside her. Judy got up instantly.

"There isn't anything to tell," she said evenly. "I didn't murder him. Why should I want to? I was going to marry him."

Except that she spoke quickly there was no sign of emotion in her voice. But there was a false quality in it. She wasn't telling Mr. Martin any more, apparently, than she'd been telling me. I got up, went over to her and put my hand on her shoulder.

"If Mr. Martin is going to help you, Judy, he's got to know something of the background of this business."

I took the snapshot Steven Ewing had given me out of my pocket.

"You might possibly be willing to show him this—or even want to."

She looked silently at it for an instant, her face freezing, eyes widening as the meaning of it struck her. Then she stood perfectly rigid, her mouth open, eyes dilated. She looked slowly from the photo to the window, back to the photo, then to me.

"Where . . . did you get this?" she whispered.

"From an admirer of mine," I said. "Another one is getting the negative . . . so you can have a lot of them for your friends' memory books."

I took a cigarette, struck a match, lighted the cigarette and held the match out to Judy. She looked at it a moment, then stuck the corner of the picture in it, and watched the flame crawl up and suddenly envelop it.

She dropped it onto the hearth. The flame died down, the charred figures on the charred surface writhed convulsively and disappeared in a tiny plume of white smoke. I put my foot on them and ground them to ash . . . thinking all the while that if Buck gave the negative, if he did get it, to Col. Primrose, this would be pretty pointless.

The blackmailer's picture—Judy saying an affectionate farewell to the murdered Dex Cromwell

But if knew it wasn't in another way—by the suddenly lessened tension in Judy's eyes. However useless in the final analysis, it had nevertheless for the moment made a bond between us that we hadn't had before.

She gave my hand a quick little squeeze, and turned to Mr. Martin, who was sitting there completely flabbergasted, like a rural audience at a sleight-of-hand performance.

"My aunt just wanted you to know the mess I'm in," she said steadily. "I'm tired now. Perhaps you can do something if . . . if they start to arrest me. I'd . . . I'd rather not go to jail."

I looked flabbergasted myself. She was as cool and matter-of-fact as Kaye Gorman or Vicki Ray.

"And . . . I'll see you in the morning."

Mr. Martin hesitated, and bowed himself out. I waited till he'd closed the door and had time to get away from it.

"Well," I said, "there goes somebody else you've convinced you mean you don't want to go to jail, my lamb, you'd better start doing something about it."

She turned on me desperately.

"Where is that negative, Grace? You've got to get it, no matter how much it costs—do you hear me?"

She clutched my arm frantically.

"Look, Judy," I said practically, forcing myself at least to sound patient. "I tell you the negative is being got—far more effectively than you or I could do it, and that's that. Now sit down."

It occurred to me that I'd better close the windows.

"A man named Steve Ewing took that picture," I said. "He must have—"

Then I noticed her eyes changing, on guard again.

"Judy," I said, "—has he done this, or something, before?"

"I don't know," she whispered

I took a deep breath instead of counting ten.

"Listen, Judy," I said. "This isn't getting anybody anywhere. Look—it doesn't make any difference to me what's happened out here, not up to now. I hope you didn't murder Dex Cromwell. But if you did, all the more reason for you to snap out of it, and quit trying to conceal things that by their very nature can't be concealed. If this Ewing has been blackmailing you, say so."

"I suppose it was him," she said dully. "They say so many things about Reno you can't believe."

She started to get up, but I pulled her back.

"Go on."

EXTORTION!

"Oh, I got a letter one day, stuck under my door. It said something about a picture that I'd be interested in keeping from my family and they'd sell it for five hundred dollars, I was to put the money on a certain table at the River House at a certain time, and I'd find the picture and the negative under my door when I came in."

"Did you ?"

"Of course not."

Her eyes flashed.

"Why should I? I hadn't done anything I was ashamed of. I've heard that's one of the things you have to be careful about here. They're supposed to take your picture in gambling places, or these . . . well, these places around here and if you don't buy them they're supposed to send them to your husband.

"Then he can contest the divorce and get out of alimony, or get custody of the children, because you're not fit to have them. Or . . . or something. Well, I'm not getting alimony and there aren't any children, and anyway, I don't do things I don't want anybody to know about . . . and anyway, there's . . . there's nobody that cares what I do . . ."

She was sitting bolt-upright blinking her long lashes to keep back the tears. I looked at her "Judy," I said, "—is that why Clem came out? Did somebody send him a picture?"

She nodded.

"What of?"

"Of me, and . . . Dex. He was just kissing me good-night. He'd kissed me good-night . . . oh, lots of times. But that . . . that wasn't the point."

She stared blindly ahead of her

Will Judy's husband help her if she is indicted for Dex Cromwell's murder? Don't miss tomorrow's thrilling chapter.

Heifetz, Artie Shaw Share State, Orpheum Screens

Famed Violinist Appears in Film

Jascha Heifetz, and Artie Shaw, the King of Swing, idol of the cats, alligators, rug cutters and jitterbugs, will share Loew's State and Orpheum screens for the week beginning tomorrow.

There you have the musical gamut, from A to Z, and without the usual interruption of dashing from, say, Symphony Hall to the Ritz Roof.

The great Heifetz is making his screen debut in Samuel Goldwyn's production, "They Shall Have Music" which is the story of Professor Lawson, portrayed by Wilbur Brennan, and his music school settlement.

The school's ragtag pupils are musical prodigies, particularly Frankie who has inherited his dead father's talent for the violin. Growing up and successful Frankie's grateful tribute to the professor is expressed by his bringing Heifetz to the bankrupt school's aid.

One of the picture's most thrilling sequences shows Heifetz on the platform of a concert hall, playing Saint-Saens' "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso," a magnificent job of sound recording, according to Deems Taylor.

Taylor, who saw the picture in a Hollywood projection room, was impressed by the long shots, close-ups, and the close-close-ups of the bow and the wonderfully controlled arm that propels it, glimpses of the flashing fingers of that miraculous left hand.

"Dancing Co-Ed," based on Albert Treynor's magazine story of the same name, provides the setting for Artie Shaw's first screen appearance.

Two hundred jitterbugs, personally selected by him appear in the dance sequences.

MARTY MAY, comedian, at RKO tomorrow for 4-day appearance.

'Nice Goin' ' Opens At Shubert Monday

The Boston premiere of "Nice Goin'," Boston-born Laurence Schwab's first musical comedy production in several years, next Monday night at the Shubert will assemble an impressive array of theatrical notables.

Mr Schwab will be here to supervise the opening. He is bringing with him Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, responsible for the musical score and lyrics; Richard Berger, his associate and director of the Municipal Opera of St. Louis, and Arthur Sircom, Broadway and Cape Playhouse director.

Jackie Heller On RKO Stage

Jackie Heller, radio's dynamic singer of songs, late feature of "Yokel Boy," headlines the new stage show opening tomorrow at the RKO Boston Theater under the new four-day vaudeville policy.

Universal's unusual dramatic film, "Code of the Streets," with the Little Tough Guys, Harry Carey and Frankie Thomas is billed as the screen attraction.

Diminutive and irrepressible, Jackie Heller has scored a series of brilliant successes on the radio, the screen and motion pictures.

Also featured in the stage show will be debonair Marty May, international comedian.

'Beau Geste' Moves To Uptown Screen

In the persons of Gary Cooper, Ray Milland Robert Preston the gallant brothers Geste again come to the screen in "Beau Geste." Paramount's new picturization of the celebrated P. C. Wren novel opening Friday at the Uptown. Brian Donlevy, however, is the baddie to watch in this one. He is swell.

On the same program will be shown "Way Down South," with Bobby Breen, Alan Mowbray and Sally Blane.

'ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS' TO RUN ANOTHER WEEK

The Playwrights' Company has extended the engagement of Raymond Massey, in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" at the Boston Opera House to include a second week.

A further extension is absolutely impossible so the Boston engagement will positively end on Saturday evening, November 4.

Seats for the additional week will go on sale at the Boston Opera House and at the Wilbur theater tomorrow.

Not in recent years, if ever, has interest in a play been as great as it is for "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

The mail orders received prior to the opening of the regular advance sale were unprecedented.

ENGAGEMENT EXTENDED

The tremendous demand for seats for RAYMOND MASSEY, in "ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS" Opening Monday at the BOSTON OPERA HOUSE has caused THE PLAYWRIGHTS' COMPANY to extend the engagement for a second week.

THE ENGAGEMENT MUST END SAT. EVE., NOV. 4. The Additional week was arranged so that everybody might have the opportunity of seeing ROBERT E. SHERWOOD'S vital and interesting Pulitzer Prize Play of 1939.

SEATS FOR SECOND WEEK GO ON SALE AT BOSTON OPERA HOUSE & WILBUR THEATRE TOMORROW MORNING.

'HOLLYWOOD CAVALCADE' AT METROPOLITAN TOMORROW

Alice Faye, Don Ameche Co-Star

"Hollywood Cavalcade," 20th Century Fox's interesting resume of the motion picture business, will have its New England premiere tomorrow on the screen of the Metropolitan Theater.

The associate picture will be the most recent of the Nancy Drew stories, "Nancy Drew and the Hidden Staircase," featuring Bonita Granville, John Litel and Frankie Thomas.

Alice Faye and Don Ameche share top honors in "Hollywood Cavalcade," filmed in Technicolor. The big production features a number of the outstanding screen personalities of the past decade as well as the popular stars of today.

The romance of Hollywood from the bathing beauty era down to the advent of sound is portrayed in "Hollywood Cavalcade."

Amongst the big features are Mack Sennett beauties strolling again besides Castle Rock on Santa Monica beach, those inimitable keystone cops cavorting again in slapstick comedy, and the presentation of Al Jolson again singing "Kol Nidre," the song with which he electrified the entire world in the first sound picture ever made.

For its story "Hollywood Cavalcade" tells of a young "prop" boy, who, through his ability and keen imagination, develops into one of the cinema's foremost directors, fashioning, as he goes along, one of the leading stars of all movie history.

[illegible] ness while the picture was in work.

"Nancy Drew and the Hidden Staircase," is the fourth in the Warner Bros. series presenting Bonita Granville as the heroine of Carolyn Keene's popular detective stories.

WALTER BRENNAN, Andrea Leeds, Gene Reynolds and Joel McCrea in "They Shall Have Music," opening tomorrow at both Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Movie Love Different Now

Screen sweethearts from John Garfield and Priscilla Lane of "Dust Be My Destiny," their new Warners' co-starrer opening tomorrow on the Paramount and Fenway screens, are forced by the script to do without moonlight and roses.

When he proposes to her they are sitting in a hay wagon in a farm barnyard, hayseed moon and stars but [illegible] accompaniment of mooing cows and cackling chickens.

Love has changed in the movies. The modern scripters even have the heroines helping the heroes over the final hurdles. Remember "Dark Victory," in which Bette Davis [illegible]

And in "Daughters Courageous," Priscilla Lane snuggled a little closer to John Garfield, pursed her lips provocatively, and said:

"If you kiss me now, you'll save a lot of time."

"Dust Be My Destiny," film version of Jerome Odlum's novel, has a strong supporting cast headed by Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Charley Grapewin, Henry Armetta and Stanley Ridges.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct 18 It takes a lot of character to have the courage of your convictions in Hollywood, but sometimes it pays in the long run as it did in the case of Rita Hayworth.

The critics said after she played in "Only Angels Have Wings" that she deserved better breaks. Rita took them at their word and turned down dozens of screen plays Columbia offered her because she was determined not to accept insignificant roles. Showed she was wise because today she was given the lead opposite Tony Martin in "Passport to Happiness." She will dance for the first time since as a member of the famous Cansino family she changed her name to Haywoth. She was originally discovered when she was dancing at Agua Caliente.

* * *

HOLLYWOOD CHATTER: One of the Marquis de la Falaise Hollywood friends, who asks that his name be kept secret, has had a letter from France that the debonair Marquis is in the front line trenches with the French army. Wonder if that won't delay the divorce action Constance Bennett planned to bring against him. For several years she has been trying to obtain her freedom but because of the large financial settlement due to community property laws in France and in California, it has been held up.

U. S. Capital Hails New Film

By PEGGY DOYLE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 Official Washington headed by the New Deal's suave, smiling Postmaster General Jim Farley, went to Constitution Hall for the world premiere of Columbia's Frank Capra production, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Before its final unreeling, probably the most distinguished audience ever to attend a motion picture premiere was beaming as pridefully as the rest of us bug-eyed sightseers, newspapermen and women from Boston, New York and Baltimore, had been doing.

The latter were taken on what approximated a Smith tour and included the majestically beautiful Lincoln Memorial, the Senate Chamber (where the neutrality debate was in lively progress), the Washington Monument, the Supreme Court Building and many of the other government edifices that appear in the Capra picture.

JAMES STEWART STAR

Mr. Capra goes to Washington in his newest production and, in the course of its unwinding, the most casual customer in the house is guaranteed to become a Yankee Doodle boy or girl on the spot.

'Mr. Smith Goes To Washington" in which likeable, boyish James Stewart goes to town in the title role, is just what the doctor ordered in these troublesome days when our star-spangled shores never looked lovelier to expatriate Americans.

It is timely, has patriotic appeal and is entertaining besides. For Boston it is particularly potent. For its hero, Jefferson Smith, idealistic junior senator who stages a successful one-man filibuster when confronted with trumped up charges before a senatorial committee, will remind his fellow citizens of the Commonwealth of the stout-hearted, eloquent Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, whose grandfather made history in the Senate and who himself may one day hold the highest office within the gift of the people.

To list the names of those attending tonight's premiere, the first ever to be sponsored by the National Press Club, is to recite the roster of official Washington and reprint practically in to the social register.

Scollay, Modern Have New Bill

The fascinating characters of Louis Bromfield's great novel are brought to life on the screens of the Scollay and Modern Theatres in "The Rains Came," starring Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power, George Brent, Nigel Bruce and Darryl F. Zanuck's latest discovery, Brenda Joyce.

The co-feature on this new program, starting tomorrow will be "Stop, Look and Love," starring Jean Rogers, William Frawley, Eddie Collins and Robert Kellard.

"The Rains Came" is a story of strangely-assorted humans, cut off from the world in the colorful mythical city of Ranchipur, India. Stripped of their veneer, their pride is forgotten and their emotions left raw as the angry forces of nature make life a fading hope, and love a desperate longing.

Business Surges Back to Normal

"Look out, normal, here we come!" That might well be the challenging call of American business as it surges toward the 100 mark on the activity index . . . It means the accepted "good" year 1926 is nearly equalled . . . And prosperity is spreading through the length and breadth of industry . . .

PLUS SIGNS . . . Dominate the score boards of business progress . . . And only the words "best yet" can adequately describe what is happening to production figures . . . It is real boom made the more gratifying because it is so plainly stamped made in the U. S. A. War may have prodded constructive forces into action . . . But it falls far short of accounting for the sweeping gains recorded since the lows of last June - July . . . The chart tells the true story . . . All through the early months of the year a firm groundwork was laid . . . One capable of supporting a revival such as we are witnessing . . .

INDIVIDUAL . . . Industrial performances emphasize the character of the upturn in the activity index . . . Paperboard production is running behind orders by almost two weeks . . . Cotton is operating a scant 15 per cent short of capacity . . . Rayon has already consumed more fiber this year than in all 1938 . . . Lumber company sales books are filled with orders whose value is only 3 per cent under 1929 levels . . . Steel men are talking a 90,000-ton production month . . . The previous "best-on-record" month was August 1937's 77,000 tons . . . These are the things which make the steep uptrending line on the chart . . . They are the realities of recovery which can not be dissipated by the gloomy thoughts of skeptics . . .*

• • •

STOCK PRICES . . . Have taken cognizance of the good things trade offers . . . And while war moves are given all the credit we like to believe battles simply happened on a scene already set for an upside display . . . But whatever the reason the market has left dead center and is headed higher . . . It looks like a definite move to the 170-175 zone, long ago noted here, was in process of development . . . Our chart studies currently point to something in the vicinity of 164 on the Dow-Jones industrial average afor this particular leg of the advance . . . The important thing is a larger corrective reaction was avoided . . . That means plenty of internal market strength . . .

• • •

TRANSLATION . . . Of the potential upswing into individual stocks is rather difficult . . . But most leaders face the prospect of gains about equalling that seen for the average—10 points from last night's closing . . . U. S. Steel, for instance, indicates a possible move to around 88 . . . Chrysler shows a similar possible gain, with an indicated stopping place at 102 . . . The figures are of taken from personal chart studies and are not to be regarded as iron clad . . . Revisions up or down may be necessary later on as surrounding conditions vary . . . Fore we never look on charts as an infallible route to sure thing stock gains . . .*

• • •

MODEL ACCOUNTS . . . Can be varied to place the emphasis on war . . . or purely domestic recovery prospects . . . or to include issues in both categories . . . One we like is made up of Pacific Mills, Delaware & Hudson, Sears Roebuck, Curtis Wright and White Motor . . . Slightly on the war side . . . A low priced selection with the same tinge includes Bucyrus Erie, American Machine, Inspiration Copper, Boston & Maine preferred, Allied Stores and Transue & Williams . . . Top flight blue chips might be welded together into something similar with Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, Sears Roebuck, Douglas, Pullman and Kennecott . . . Then of course, there are ever desirable qualities in American Car, Consolidated Aircraft, N. Y. Central, Celanese, Waukesha, U. S. Steel, Boeing and many others . . . Of the last we have tried to supply some idea during the past two or three weeks as the market spent its time idling.

Sellers Halt Rise in War Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP) Selling in war stocks checked the market's forward momentum today.

Steels, aircrafts and other groups in front of the previous sessions advance, yielded opening gains and went moderately lower for the day, leaving the list uneven toward midday.

Losses of fraction to more than a point appeared in Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Douglas, Sperry, Anaconda, Kennecott and Montgomery Ward.

Clinging to gains were Cerre de Pasco, Caterpillar Tractor, U. S. Gypsum, Electric Boat and Eastman.

Most bonds extended the gains scored in the previous session. Major commodities also ruled higher on the whole.

Reports a peace mediation move might emerge from the conference of Scandinavian powers seemed to cause hesitation in buying of war shares, which had advanced sharply yesterday.

Overnight news items included the report of the Edison Electric Institute that power production for the week ended Oct. 14 was the highest on record, with a total of 2,494,630,000 kilowatt hours. The figure was 1.2 per cent better than for the preceding week and 14.3 above a year ago.

Atlas Plywood

The board of directors of Atlas Plywood Corp. today declared a dividend on the preferred stock amounting to 32 cents per share, payable Nov. 1, 1939, to stock of record Oct. 20. This is at the yearly rate of $1.25 per share.

THREATEN REPEAL OF TRADE TREATIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (INS) Threats of repeal of the reciprocal trade treaty law were voiced by members of Congress at a hearing on a proposed agreement with Argentina.

Even supporters of the Administration's trade treaty policy told the committee on reciprocity information the law would have to be "most carefully administered" or Congress would repeal it.

Senator Schwellenbach (D) of Washington, an Administration supporter, told the committee he is "extremely anxious for the law to be so administered as not to arouse antagonism of people in this country."

"Congress will end the law and the principle will be forfeited if this occurs," he warned.

Senator Byrd (D) of Virginia told the committee:

"It is important that no article—manufactured or agricultural—should be allowed to sell at a price lower than the cost here."

Repeal may be necessary "to protect the people who demand it," Rep. Crawford (R.) of Michigan declared.

Protesting against a decrease in duties on cheese from Argentina Rep. Cook (D.) of Michigan, declared "very powerful political influence" was exerted in the Argentine by foreign diplomats to secure acceptance of the proposed pact.

"Cheese sent to the United States by Argentina is produced by Italian cheese makers, and is the same as has been made in Italy for hundreds of years," he said. "Under the most-favored-nation clause in the commercial agreement with Italy, the Italian cheese will be entitled to receive the same advantages."

Two representatives of industry supported phases of the proposed treaty. Louis B. Jackson, of the International Shoe Co., St. Louis, urged lower duties on hides. He asserted this country cannot produce enough hides to meet the demand, and that they are a by-product of the packing industry, and not a farm product.

William S. Culbertson, of the Rich Products Corp., Rockford, Ill., dealers in corned beef, cured and canned meats, hides and skins, approved proposed duty cuts on lower grades of meats, asserting such action would benefit consumers without injuring cattle producers.

Steel Price Jump Seen $3 Limit

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP) — Major steel producers, united committed to a policy of restraint [illegible] have their price views for the first quarter of 1940, Iron Age said today in its weekly survey.

"While conformable information as to forthcoming price decisions is not yet obtainable," asserted the review, "opinion in the trade is that advances, if any, will not exceed $2 or $3 a ton, which steel makers say will not cover their increased costs.

"Economic advisers of the Washington administration, who are bringing pressure against price advances on steel and watching closely price movements in scrap, copper, zinc and other important commodities, are represented as being apprehensive of a room and subsequent disastrous collapse should prices of important commodities get far out of balance.

"The hysterical buying of September and early October has been followed by a calmer market, but pressure for shipments is heavy, indicating to steel companies that most of the current production is going into immediate use rather than into inventory."

The Iron Age scrap composite dropped $1.08 to $21 a ton, $1.50 below the peak of the recent movement.

ADVERTISING COURSE WILL START OCT. 24

A course in "Fundamentals of Advertising" by Harold F. Vaughan, account executive, Doremus & Co., international advertising agency, will begin Oct. 24 at the Gardner Auditorium, State House, Boston, under the sponsorship of the Massachusetts Division of University Extension.

Mr. Vaughan has been in the agency business since 1926 and has had wide advertising and selling experience. He has lectured before the advertising and vocational classes at the College of Business Administration, Boston University, of which he is a graduate.

He also has conducted an advertising course at the Young Men's Catholic Association, Boston.

This course has been given by the Massachusetts Department of Education for the past 12 years and during that time over 1500 men and women have taken the course, some classes attracting as many as 100 students.

A general view of advertising in its various branches will be presented during the eight lectures and should benefit those planning to enter advertising work, or, recently in advertising, as well as those individuals desiring a wider knowledge of advertising in its various departments.

Subjects covered include: Advertising agency, newspaper and magazine campaigns, work of copy writer, radio and retail advertising.

POWER OUTPUT HITS NEW PEAK

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP) - Electric power production in the United States during the week ended Oct. 14 was the highest on record, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The latest total of 2,494,630,000 kilowatt hours was 1.2 per cent more than 2,465,230,000 in the preceding week and 14.3 per cent ahead of 2,182,751,000 in the comparable 1938 week, the institute said.

The Associated Press weighted index of power also responded to the more than seasonally expected increase with a new record high at 126.8. The index, based on 1929-30 as 100 and adjusted for seasonal and long term trend, stood at 125.4 in the preceding week and 113.1 a year ago.

Percentage gains from last year according to major geographic areas were: New England 14.6, Middle Atlantic 13.2, Central Industrial 18.7, West Central 8.9, Southern States 12.8, Rocky Mountain 20.4, Pacific Coast 7.[illegible]

Retail Ads Rise Sharply

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 — For the week ended Oct. 7, volume of newspaper advertising placed by retailers in 78 major American markets totalled 21,594,451 lines, according to a report issued today by Advertising Age, national advertising newspaper.

This was an increase of more than 1,080,000 lines over the 20,901,078 lines carried during the corresponding week of 1938—an increase of 5.2 per cent.

For the entire year to date, retail volume in these markets has totalled 716,136,739 lines, compared with 703,737,303 lines during the corresponding period of last year.

This is an increase of 12,399,436 lines, or 1.8 per cent.

N. H. RAILROAD PROSPECT BRIGHT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct 18— President Howard Palmer asserted here that with freight business showing a marked upward trend, prospect of the New Haven Railroad "appear brighter."

Speaking before 300 members of the New Haven Railroad Club, he explained that gross revenues for September were approximately $7,700,000, and a net income of over $200,000 is anticipated.

Revenue carloads handled during the first two weeks in October are in excess of the same period in September, he added.

Auto Gossip

BY OTTO SCOOPS

Reports on hand from the various dealers throughout Greater Boston show indications that this year's auto show in the dealers' show rooms will outdraw previous shows held under one roof. If you haven't visited the auto show as yet, by all means do it now . . . Last Saturday the boys at Packard Motor presented Willard Mosher with a testimonial gift of a lovely engraved desk set. The presentation was made by UC mgr. Paul Robey. Willard Mosher, as you probably know, is now UC mgr. at Lahme & Partridge . . . Fellers, bow your heads and let's have two minutes of silence—that grand guy, Bernard Peyser of Paul's True has gotten himself married.

Nelson Yerxa of Center Motor Sales, Malden, is running for councilman in Ward 5, Everett . . . Ruth Segal, prettykins at Dudley Motor Sales, keeps her sweet composure in spite of carpenters, painters, etc. efficiency and personality are her by-words . . . Jack Ryan, Delaney Chev., a very active and capable fellow these days—trying to keep up with Auto Show Week and its intricacies . . . Office Mgr. Milton Hughes of Main Motor Mart, Malden, and his Mrs. are returning this week from a vacation spent in Orleans.

Steve MacDonald, chief mechanic at Harvard Auto Co., is tying the knot on Oct. 24 . . . Malden auto dealers are holding their auto show at the Malden Armory . . . Dan O'Connell of Hub Chev., Camb., is taking a trip down South in preparation for another banner year pushing Chevs. . . . Bob Pierce, UC mgr. at Cadillac Olds, is putting in plenty of working hours, but doesn't mind because business is fine . . . Sales Mgr. Gordon Benway of Henley-Kimball's is cocky as the devil on account of the reception the new Hudson is getting . . . Those drove of people you see at Brookline Village are UC customers being welcomed by Leo Weeder into T. C. Baker's.

Prexy Naylor of Mass. Motor Car Co., looking pleased and contented with the flocks of people Dodge and Plymouth are enticing into his showroom . . . That Higgins lad at Pontiac Village better get married soon so that we can deliver his bride a good luck kiss . . . Charles Paul, (unmarried) production chief at Royal Tire, very seldom gets to bed and we know he isn't visiting a sick friend—now do you do it, Charlie? . . . Cosmo A. Bertocci announces a change in corporate name of Somerville Motor Car Co. to Motors of Somerville . . . Thomas F. McManus, Wayland Motors, has just returned from New York with his wife . . . Caroline Hoover and her mother, together with her cousin, Ray Mathews of Hoover Motors have left for a vacation in Florida . . . E. H. Reardon of Reardon & Woodward is taking in the N. Y. Auto Show.

Dave Delaney, Ken Chatfield and all the boys at Blue Hill Pontiac keep the customers happy with their witty repartee—It's a good way to keep out the jeeps . . . Ed Oakley has a very big staff to handle at Fells Parkway these days.

Many new men have been necessary to handle the increased business for new and used car sales—The men had a swell party last week with I. Snyder as guest of honor . . . Genial Harold O'Neil couldn't stay away from his establishment the holiday (?)—However, his family put on the pressure and he did manage to get home for a little while . . . George Badoian of East Cambridge Motors has just returned from the Auto Show in N. Y. . . . Russell Burnett of Somerville have an attractive harvest display in their showrooms . . . Frank Anthony, popular Gen. Motors rep., is the new sales mgr. at Hosmer's, in Medford.

Bill Caldwell (Broadway Chevrolet Somerville) celebrating his 12th wedding anniversary and also Mrs. Caldwell's birthday . . . Warren Illsley of Woodward's Chevrolet is keeping the wires hot to Detroit asking for 40's. His cohorts are hot on the trail for new business . . . Chet Wiley, Newton Motor Sales, says the public is sure going for the new '40 Ford . . . Mel Murray, Crescent Motor Sales, Revere, has just been awarded the Plymouth prize for the past season . . . Roy J. Link, Berkshire Trailer Co., has added the new snappy Vagabond Trailer to his line . . . Let's hear from youse guys and gals.

Streamline New Cars Bring Good Used Car Values

It's a fact—no sooner do the bright-and-shiny new models come into the market than a crop of excellent used-car values starts coming in, too. People who can't resist buying the very newest models are the people who often bring in last year's (or the year before's) models in almost good as-new condition. If you're looking for the tops in used-car value, their good luck is yours. This is the time—and the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser Automobile for Sale Columns is the place to find these values.

READY, GUS?

Ed Allen, Penn sophomore, starts pass to Capt. Harlan Gustafson on other side of page.

By DAVE GLUECK

Dick Harlow, Harvard coach, has plenty of cards up his voluminous sleeve, which will be shown for the first time against a strong Penn eleven in the Stadium Saturday. The Quakers have been working two years for this game, but you can bet your last baby bond that the fox of Soldiers Field hasn't spent all that time poring over his birds' eggs.

With Capt. Torby Macdonald fit and fast as ever, the Crimson has been working hard on passes which figure to score at least once on the Munger-men.

Harlow warned his opponents after the Chicago game that the boys would use lots of laterals this season. He declared that most of the men on his team were heave and hold adepts, and that he intended to use their talents wherever possible.

This may well be effective in bewildering the none too quixotic Quakers.

Penn has so far displayed only the push and crush type of ball, and laterals should be helpful in drawing them out of their massed defence.

GARDELLA THE WORKS

Joe Gardella, one of the best receivers on the team, is back in shape after a day's lay-off. In practice Joe was catching them on both sides and in back of him, but this is nothing, because the Arlington acrobat is strictly a prize player.

When the chips are down and the Saturday kitty is bulging, "Little Giusseppe" really turns on the heat. Then it's beware to the pass defence, and beware to the man who tries to complete a pass in Joe's territory.

There are perhaps two men on the Harvard team who spell in individual letters the difference between defeat and victory against any major opponent. One is Macdonald and the other is Gardella.

Of course, the Crimsons haven't been forgetting that it's as important to keep the opposition from scoring, as it is to score themselves.

Half an hour a day is spent on defense against Penn, plays, with All-America Wes Fesler running the Reagan role. Harlow figures that after Fesler, Reagan will be a relief to the boys.

Macdonald will whisper the Harlow strategy, instead of Spreyer, in this week's huddle. Earny Seargent, who was bumped by one of the willowy Windy City boys, will be starting against the Quakers.

Meanwhile, his substitute, Dick Phister, the South Dakota submariner, has been picking up experience at running guard. This 200-pound sophomore looks like one of the best line prospects Harvard has ever seen. Joe Koufman seems to have made a complete recovery from his body injury, and probably will start at right end in place of Kelly. Big Gene Lovett, another convalescent, will be ready to work on either flank.

PENN HERE FRIDAY

The Penn entourage arrives Friday morning by boat and will stay at the Belmont Country Club. Loyal Boston alumni will give a Quaker smoker on Friday night. The Harvard team will go to Brae Burn for dinner the same evening.

Lineups in dummy scrimmage were:

Typhoid Sends 6 to Hospital At Providence

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 18 (AP)—An outbreak of typhoid at Providence College, with four definite and two suspicious cases, had been reported today by Dr. George E. Johnson, deputy superintendent of health in Providence.

The outbreak occurred among students and others who were connected with the activities of the football team.

An employe of the kitchen has been sent to a hospital as a suspected carrier.

Three of the patients are at the Charles V. Chapin Hospital. They are: Raymond Kowalski, Theodore Alexakos and Malcolm Brown. Alexakos is a junior and a guard on the football team. His home is in Dracut, Mass.

Fr. Robert G. Quinn, director of athletics at the institution and a son of Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, is ill at St. Joseph's Hospital with symptoms similar to those of typhoid.

Paul Dunne of 93 Stafford rd., Fall River, a senior who assists Fr. Quinn, is being treated for the disease at Fall River.

Penn Fears Harvard Offense

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18 — Joe Miller, no relation to the comedian, has been promoted to first string end by Penn's head coach, George Munger, and may start on one of the extremities against Harvard Saturday.

The promotion came, Munger said, for Miller's fine end play in the Yale game last week.

Penn is plainly worried about the type of offense Harlow will use against it Saturday.

The coaches have their men working against five, six and seven men lines.

Pros Drawing Record Crowds

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP) — Attendance at National football league games for the first five weeks of the season is running ten per cent ahead of the record pace set last year, President Carl L. Storck said today.

The first 23 games have averaged an increase of 2000 spectators a game over 1938. Cleveland, Philadelphia and Washington are running well ahead of their last year's attendance figures while Pittsburgh, which has not won a game, has shown a decline. All other clubs are even or slightly ahead of a year ago.

Hanover Grid Special

A special train to Hanover, N. H., for the Dartmouth-Lafayette game will leave Boston at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Boston & Maine Railroad officials announced.

The train will carry all air-conditioned coaches and a diner. It will leave Hanover at 6:30 p. m.

Capt. Gustafson catches Allen pass to remind Harvard that it has no monopoly on the passing game. Gustafson caught the Penn pass that beat Yale last Saturday.

Brown Drills For H. C. Test

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 18 (AP)—Brown's preparations for Saturday's encounter with Holy Cross are in full swing.

In the Tuesday drill the varsity squad worked on passes and on assignments before jumping into a scrimmage session that took up the major portion of the drill.

With Dick High, sophomore back, tied up with academic work Tiny Tommy Lohr operated in the fullback berth and turned in some excellent running.

Sonnenberg, Westenberg Clash on Mat

With a pair of former world's champions heading the list, Promoter Paul Bowser will pry off the wrestling lid tonight when he stages the season's first tournament at the Boston Arena. It will mark the first of a series of weekly shows that will continue all year.

For the main event, the boys are in the midst of a title elimination process, for Gus (The Goat) Sonnenberg, former Dartmouth football immortal, and Marvin (The Shadow) Westenberg are due to tangle.

It looks like even-Stephen and take your pick when they climb into the ring.

In the semi-final, an old Boston favorite returns when Danno O'Mahony goes against Jim Wright, the big Texan. Danno has been doing most of his wrestling in other cities for the past two years, but he plans to make Boston his headquarters again.

SHIFT ORANGE BACK

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP)—Attempting to get more speed in the Orange attack before the Duke game at Durham, N. C., Saturday, Coach Ossie Solem has moved Leo Canale, Watertown sophomore, from fullback to wingback.

LIKE A TRIPLE THREAT HALFBACK

Harvard HAS WHAT IT TAKES

In an open field or "through the line" he carries the ball for steady gains. For the long pass or the kick out of danger, he's always dependable. In brewing, HARVARD is a triple treat . . . a dependable combination of choice materials, superior facilities and skilled man-power. That's why HARVARD "has what it takes" and is making steady gains in popularity.

HARVARD BREWING CO. NEW ENGLAND'S LOWELL, MASS.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

JOHNNY LEONARD of Taunton was raining punches at Andrew Spano of Pawtucket in an amateur boxing show at the Arena under the auspices of the Irish American A. A.

The two sturdy bantamweights were battling in the same ring in which Jack Sharkey, Jim Maloney, Al Mello, Sammy Fuller, Dick Finnegan, Chick Suggs, Pancho Villa, Jock Maloney, Mickey Walker, Dave Shade, Eddie Shevlin, George Ward, Jack Renault, Hambone Kelley and other famous professionals had exchanged withering fistic fire in the days of New England's boxing greatness.

Spano fought back against Leonard with great courage, but Referee Johnny Martin stepped in between the boxers late in the second round and declared Leonard a winner by a technical knockout. Spano was outclassed at the time, and it would have been unfair to have permitted the one-sided bout to have gone any further.

Even in the days of New England's boxing supremacy amateur boxing was popular. Now with little professional boxing in local rings the fans have turned to the simon pure sport for action.

Joe Louis came to Boston as an amateur to compete in a national boxing tournament at the Arena. The "Brown Bomber" passed almost unnoticed by the professional managers who were then seeking talent. They argued that Louis was beaten in his class, and was also colored. They didn't think a defeated colored boxer could ever hope to get anywhere in the professional ranks. Louis has since earned $1,500,000 by the power of his fists and the speed and agility of his legs plus a natural fighting instinct.

Most of the prominent professional boxers have at some time battled in the amateurs. If you can visualize some of these raw, unfinished simon pure punch flingers as polished ring men skilled in their craft, you may stumble on the young heavyweight who will some day defeat Joe Louis.

* * *

Tony Ferry and Herbert Coonan

GEORGE FREEMAN mentioned the names of Tony Ferry and Herbert Coonan when I asked him if there were any promising New England amateur heavyweights.

"Ferry has been brought along slowly, and in another year he will be ready for the professional game," said Freeman. "It is a mistake to rush a young heavyweight to the front too quickly. It takes three to five years to eliminate the rough spots on a heavyweight diamond.

"Coonan showed well last season, and is the only New England big fellow capable of giving Ferry serious opposition."

In the ring, Tommy Rawson, Jr., formerly of East Boston but now of Arlington, was refereeing a final bout. Tommy comes of fighting stock. His dad, now boxing instructor at Tech, was an old time ring star. Tommy boxed as a professional for several years, and made creditable showings.

Across the ring from each other were Jim Shaunnessey and Tom McCarthy, judges. Joe Bloumstac later also did some judging, while Johnny Martin alternated as referee.

Eddie Bradley of Somerville and Tom Kirby of Roxbury, both former boxers, also referee at amateur boxing shows. In 1928 Bradley lost the final in the New England 175-pound class to Jimmy Mendez of New Bedford. Eddie then went on to graduate from Fordham, and to become an optometrist.

Dick Merritt Trains Many Amateur Boxers

DICK MERRITT trained many of the boxers who competed. He is already getting many youngsters ready for the Hearst All-America amateur boxing tournament that will open with trial bouts at the Arena on November 13.

"Sully" Emmet of the South Boston Emmets puffed away at a big, black cigar from a ringside pew. Christened Frank Sylbestro, "Sully" took the name Emmet after the street on which he lives. I shall always recall a day he was testifying in the Newton district court. The judge asked him if he had made a certain statement.

"Okay, judge," said 'Sully' from the witness stand, "you heard me correct."

Even the dignified jurist on the bench smiled.

"Sully" handles 100 different amateur boxers in the course of a year, and he believes that each of them is destined to become a champion. That is a way with seconds of amateurs. They certainly do not lack in enthusiasm.

* * *

BACK IN THE dressing room Gene Driscoll kept the show moving. He weighed the boxers, supervised the medical examinations, directed the drawings in the various classes, and did the other numerous things that kept a big show moving along smoothly.

Ben Levins, member of the registration committee of the New England A. A. U., dropped into the dressing rooms to give any assistance that may be required.

In the central offices of the New England A. A. U., President Herb Holm and Secretary J. Frank Facey approve the sanctions and regulate the registration of the boxers.

Temple Favored Over B. C. Despite Pair of Beatings

If the Temple team which comes here Saturday to face Frank Leahy's Boston College Eagles at Fenway Park hadn't broken out in a two-touchdown second half rash to defeat Texas Christian, 13-11, last week, the locals would not only be facing a team which hadn't won a game, but one which hadn't even posted a touchdown.

Don't get the impression, however, that Temple is any pushover. On the contrary, it will be favored to beat B. C.

While the Eagles were facing minor league opposition in Lebanon Valley and St. Joseph's, the Fred Swan coached team was trading punts and passes with big boys like Georgetown and Carnegie Tech.

The Eagles picked up wins and little else in their first two games and when called upon to face a team like Florida, flunked their first major test.

STIFFER OPPOSITION

The Owls lost to strong Georgetown, 3-2, and stronger Carnegie, 6-0, but learned plenty while doing so.

When they took on Dutch Meyer's Texas crowd they were able to cope with everything the air minded operation showed and the twin touchdown efforts which Temple later unleashed gave the Swans their initial victory. That's why the visitors will rule the favorite this weekend.

FRED SWAN
Pop Warner's Successor

Of course a Boston College victory isn't outside the realm of possibility. Any team with a halfback named Charles O'Rourke always has a chance.

Boston College can win this one, but it will have to show a better brand of line play than it exhibited last week.

Also it will have to have better quarterbacking, more effective blocking and more opportunism.

IT WILL BE CLOSE

It might be a dog eat dog line battle (Boston College has permitted its opposition only 13 points, Temple but 20) or it might be another wild and wooly affair like last year's 26-26 tie.

The teams are equipped to make it either kind of battle, but at any rate, it should be terribly close.

The Boston College squad already has had two two-hour scrimmages this week. Freshman teams provided the opposition.

Team A lined up as follows: Lukachik, le; Levanitis, lt; J. Zabilski, lg; Dubzinski, c; Kerr, rg; Yauckoes, rt; Goodreault, re; Toczylowski, qb; O'Rourke, lhb; Ananis, rhb; Cignetti, fb.

ONLY ONE B. U. SOPH TO OPPOSE UPSALA

"There's no such thing as 'breathers' in football any more, and I'm starting the best eleven I have against Upsala Saturday," chirped Pat Hanley, Boston University's veteran mentor, this morning.

Rumors have been making the rounds that the Terriers were going to depend on reserves against the Vikings but Hanley quickly dispelled the thought.

He is faced with the task of building a ball club and he believes the only way to do that is to bring a starting unit along against outside competition.

FEARS OVERCONFIDENCE

Then, too, Pat received information today that was far from pleasing. There were three Upsala scouts in the stands, and one of them openly boasted after the game that the Vikings could take the Terriers.

On the basis of last year's 25-0 victory over Upsala, Coach Hanley is more than afraid of a letdown on the part of his squad. The team was keyed for Western Reserve and, if his green men get the idea that Upsala is a cinch, a loss would not be too remote a thought.

Because of this the Terrier chief is making a few backfield changes with the idea of fielding as many veterans as possible, and he will start an eleven that has only one sophomore.

The newcomer given the honor is Charlie Thomas, colored halfback from Dayton, Ohio. Thomas, who was a blocking back as a freshman last year, was moved to a running spot this fall, and in the two games played to date he has been little short of a sensation.

THOMAS' GREAT CATCH

Against Franklin and Marshall, he made a great catch of a 51-yard pass from Walter Williams and ran 20 more to score. Shortly after he intercepted an F. and M. aerial shot and raced 45 yards to tally again.

Last Saturday, he scored one of Boston University's two touchdowns against Reserve and in the closing minute made one of the greatest catches of a pass ever seen at Fenway Park.

Surrounded by three Cats, he went up and nailed the pass to put the Terriers in scoring position on the 14-yard line. Unfortunately, the game ended on the next play.

Allerdice Loafs As Tigers Scrimmage

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP)—Coach Tad Wieman is putting the Princeton varsity through an intensive scrimmage session in preparation for Saturday's football with Columbia.

In the Tuesday scrimmage Dave Allerdice, aerial artist, was on the sidelines, and not one pass was thrown.

RETURN OF HARDING BUOYS N. U. HOPES

Northeastern will be able to throw its strongest offense of the year against Tufts at Medford Saturday afternoon.

The return of Ken Harding, veteran 190-pound triple threat back, will give the Huskies a passer and an air threat which was sadly lacking against New Hampshire and Bates.

In these last two games, the Huskies had no aerial threat, and it was an easy matter for the defense wreck the N. U. offense.

With Harding in there as a passing threat, Tufts will be unable to use a defense to stop the Huskies' running attack alone for Ken is one of the best small college slingers in these parts.

Teamed with Harding in the first backfield will be Ronnie Tubbs, Sonny Yetten and Jack Caswell.

$14,649,873 Bet on Dogs

Reba Nell, track record holder for the Revere Course, came from far back to nip Rural Rube at the wire in the Old Harbor Derby, feature race on the closing card of 1939 at the Wonderland Dog track, Revere.

Rural Rube went to the front at the start and even though it had a three length lead at the top of the stretch could not withstand the strong closing bid of Nell.

The handle for the night was $138,879 to make a total of $14,649,873 bet at Wonderland during the two meetings.

Of this amount, $7,624,285 was wagered during the Bay State meeting and the balance during the Old Harbor meet.

Undefeated Ranks Halved This Week

By International News Service

A gander today at the football calendar for the budding weekend indicates that the 20 major elevens now able to brag about unbeaten, untied records may be sliced in half, if not worse, very pronto.

Six of the seven eastern perfectionists charge smack up against one another, while four of the South's unsullied brigades do likewise, which means carloads of frustration for somebody.

Few on the slender honor list will gallivant onto the chalklines with real assurance of emerging in pristine purity.

ALABAMA-TENNESSEE

Carnegie Tech, the other perfectionist in this territory, risks its halo against New York University. None even approaches the surething classification.

The southland stages one of the most nationally significant fusses next Saturday when unbeaten, untied and undefeated Tennessee swaps bruises with unbeaten, untied and once-tested Alabama at Knoxville, Tenn.

The Volunteers have gamboled over North Carolina State, Sewanee and Chattanooga, never being forced to dip into their reserves of power. 'Bama has had two simple-simons with Howard and Mercer sandwiched around a one-point success over Fordham.

AND NOTRE DAME

Ominous Tulane, bouncing off a touchdown verdict over Fordham, wrestles North Carolina, victor in four battles thus far, in Dixie's other pairing of the unbeaten and untied. Perfect Mississippi encounters St. Louis and perfect Kentucky traipses with Georgia.

Notre Dame, true Hairbreadth Harry of the grid what with inch triumphs week after week, will have to torpedo the Navy at Cleveland if it is to retain an unblotted escutcheon.

Though the Middies have been slow starters they looked up in tying Dartmouth last Saturday, and the Irish can't always win by a whisker—or can they?

Two more Middle West perfectionists go into the trenches—Michigan and Ohio State, looming as the Lions of the Big Ten Conference. Michigan should be ashamed of itself to pink on rubber-legged Chicago. The Buckeyes are flirting with dangerous buckshot in daring the awakening wrath of Minnesota.

ST. MARY'S-SANTA CLARA

Texas A. & M., which astonished by burying Villanova following three earlier triumphs, ought to hurdle much-manhandled Texas Christian in the Southwest. Unbeaten, untied Baylor has brutal company in the Cornhuskers of Nebraska.

Out on the slopes of the Pacific, Oregon State, a perfectionist only because of extra-points the past two weeks, grapples victory-famished Washington. St. Mary's Gaels will protect an unbeaten, untied report card against Santa Clara on Sunday.

South Boston, English Elevens Hive Favorites

Boston's schoolboy champions, city and district titleholders last season, took another step toward the defense of their honors this afternoon at National League Park in the most attractive doubleheader on Director Joe McKeney's program for the week.

Bill Ohrenberger

In the opener, an undefeated English which loomed as the most serious threat in the city ranks, met a rugged Dorchester high eleven while the nightcap pitted South Boston's headliners and Charlestown.

Coach Bill Ohrenberger's early prediction that his club this year was more powerful than his unbeaten squad of last season has borne fruit in the two games that the English high eleven has played thus far.

In dumping Memorial in the opener and then Trade on the holiday, the boys in blue have established themselves as the team to beat.

Emil Shtogren, a leader in the track forces, and big Tom Brennan have combined to spurt hopes to a new high for a repetition of last campaign.

If Charlestown lives up to its first game performance, Skipper Harry McDonough and the rest of the South Boston fleet may find the sailing a bit rougher than in their previous stands against Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain.

FOOTBALL FLASHES

By BILL GRIMES

Back in 1916 and again in 1922, when Harvard, Yale and Princeton entered into their original agreements on athletic eligibility, colleges and universities which were on, or angling to get on, the Crimson, Eli and Tiger schedules, ran for cover and, to all outward appearances, became converts of the purity drive.

Although they were on the down grade, when the first inter-university athletic policies were adopted, the Big Three practically controlled Eastern college football.

Colleges that didn't play the game according to the rules established by Harvard, Yale and Princeton were privately blacklisted.

The big "gates" were at Cambridge and New Haven and the institutions of learning whose football elevens were accredited with box office appeal were in a position to receive generous guarantees from the Princeton Athletic Association.

Harvard and Yale took many small colleges out of the "red" by inviting them to play at Cambridge and New Haven. From 1912, when Dartmouth was dropped off the Harvard schedule, until 1922, when relations were resumed, the Big Green shopped around for attractions which would balance the budget.

During the past week-end, a committee comprising Dean A. Chester Hanford, Harvard, former Dean C. W. Mendell, Yale, and Dean Christian Gauss, Princeton, were in a huddle and restated the original agreements and voted to "keep the spirit and the associations of professionalism out of college sports, without the unreasonable hampering of them by the mere letter of the rules."

Judging from the scant reports available, Harvard, Yale and Princeton have begun to see the light. They have agreed to remove some restrictions, which they demanded of opponents but failed to enforce themselves, such as summer baseball and camp counsellors.

* * *

While Harvard, Yale and Princeton were trying to discourage proselyting among all colleges and universities, they lost their grip on the Eastern football situation. They'd cashed in on football teams for years. And their athletic associations were financially secure, due to the "corner" they had established.

When the Big Three went "religious," football squads of remarkable ability began to crop up in all sections of the country. Colleges and universities that had always been repressed by mediocre teams suddenly began to receive national acclaim.

Check over the college and university football elevens that have crashed the sport pages of the nation consistently since the World War and you'll discover that with very, very few exceptions, none had ever been mentioned as opponents for Harvard, Yale or Princeton.

Proselyting by the Big Three was never brought out in the open. Nevertheless, it was a reality. And the authorities weren't kidding anybody but themselves if they believed that the other colleges fell for that purity line of hokum.

In many cases, small college authorities knew why prep school stars, who were headed for their institutions wound up at either Harvard, Yale or Princeton. Furthermore, the Big Three was not reluctant to outbid one another, for a particularly promising athlete.

* * *

With the exception of football, colleges do not sponsor a sport that breaks even financially. In some sections of the country, basketball shows a profit but the big money is derived from football.

In fact, the gridiron game pays the freight for all of the other recreational activities. Therefore, unless a college can produce a worthwhile profit from football, the other athletic activities must be curtailed.

Is it logical to take a stand that it's unethical to go out and get a football team, which will have enough box office appeal to finance sports for the entire student body?

Traditions no longer make for "big gates" in college football. There are so many outstanding elevens that the customers are not interested in traditions. They shop around for the best attractions, for which they are willing and ready to pay top prices.

* * *

For years, the Big Three has encountered so much opposition, particularly in the Metropolitan district, that budgets had to be reduced. Instead of the old selective system, the Big Three authorities are resorting to commercial schedules. On their present schedules are colleges which they'd like to drop but cannot afford to take the step.

SALTY TOUCHDOWN MAKER

M'Donough's Grid Feats Rival Those as Skipper

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

South Boston high school's leading scorer, Harry McDonough—commonly recognized in Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain grid circles as the little man who wasn't there—weaves a novel tale in schoolboy ranks of men who go down to the sea in ships. Playing his first season as a regular on football, he eats, drinks and sleeps the game. He comes home from school with his togs and then is off to practice with his chums.

"We're kind of secretly hoping that there are no trophies handed out for high school football."

If there were, more than one fan in the city would be handing votes out to Harry for a prize — to be lined up with the Finlay Trophy, the New England Championship Trophy, the Boston Bay Trophy, the South Shore Trophy, the Sears Cup, only to mention a few, that have been in the McDonough household through the 17-year-old youngster's water deeds.

OFF FOR PRACTICE

Three glimpses of Harry "Sailor" McDonough, South Boston High's candidate for All-America football honors. Harry's an All-America yachtsman, too.

LOOKING OVER PRIZES

Steve White's defending district champion eleven, McDonough has started a series of football headlines that promise to rival his yachting feats before the close of the campaign.

In two games, the Skipper has become the talk of the town with his dainty touchdown prancing, his bee-line passing and his spot punting.

Of his club's five touchdowns, he has carried the ball across the final stripe four times on every kind of a play from a two-foot plunge to a spectacular 63-yard romp that found eleven players diving and missing the fleeting half-back.

21 FIRST PRIZES

If you thought he was untouchable in that scoring dance you'd be forced to go overboard on his feats on the local waters.

He's recognized in every yacht club from the tip end of Cape Cod to the swank Marblehead roost as the outstanding skipper in the Snipe class.

As a junior member of the South Boston Y. C. last year, McDonough in his Top Hat, a Snipe his father bought him, won the right to enter the National Junior Sailing Championships at Southport, Ct.

This past season, he won practically everything in sight, holding 21 first places in his 26 local starts. In this streak, he turned in a record at his home club, taking nine cartridges in the nine Commodore Trophy races—the first time this trick has ever been turned in at the foot of L st.

TOO MANY PRIZES

In sailing lingo, the cartridge fired for the winner is turned over to the skipper. Hurricane, as he's often called at home, had a full bucket of these heels which most crew captains would normally prize but Harry takes them out with the kids to throw around in the field out back.

He's the same way with his mementos. He hands them out to the kids around the neighborhood. Anyhow his mother is tired of trying to find places in the parlor for the reading lamps, book ends and dozens of other novelties that go with a winner.

"I've been forced to push his things into the attic, the place has been so cluttered up with everything," smiles Mrs. McDonough.

"I guess he's having a lot of fun but I don't understand this

FATHER SEA-GOING

His triple threat ability places him above a great many of the more experienced ball carriers but Coach White will take second place to none of the others with his junior.

The modest lad ventured that he would like to follow the sea, and this inclination probably being inherited from his father who, incidentally, has never seen a football game.

Mr. McDonough cares little for the game but he warns all opponents that if Harry is as intuitive on the gridiron as he is in the open seas, there's a second place payoff for all who try to stop him.

As a matter of fact, Harry's father knows little about his son's grid career. His parting question, accompanied by a quizzical glance, was "Is he any good."

$20,000 FUTURITY FIGURED SET-UP FOR ROMAN FLAG

By the Associated Press

Down around Lexington, Ky., they're boosting Arnold Hanger's Roman Flag as a "lead pipe cinch" for Saturday's $20,000 Breeders' Futurity at Keeneland.

The crack son of Cohort-Pennant Girl stepped the three quarters in 1:11, which is just three-fifths of a second off the track record, to qualify for the big Saturday race.

Roman Flag was the shortest priced winner in the three years history of Keeneland, paying only $2.40 in the $2 mutuels.

Laurel has been showing a smaller percentage of winning favorites than usual, a check-up of the first 11 days of the meeting shows. In 81 races there have been 23 winnings favorites for an average of 28 per cent. Last week at this time 31 per cent of the public choices had come through.

The first race has been the chief jinx for the favorite players. Not since Screw Driver won at odds of $1.15 to $1 on opening day has the choice horse come home first.

The total betting for the first 11 days of the 25-day meeting is $3,-024,813 as compared to $3,000,995 last year. The daily average this season is $274,983 as compared with $272,817 last year.

Work has begun on the Aqueduct race track to make it a more up-to-date plant. The new oval will be one mile in length with a seven furlong chute. The finish line will be moved up 170 feet making it about where the sixteenth pole now stands.

It will be a major task to cut down both upper and lower turns to make it safe for the horses to take the first turn in full stride. A new stand will be added, and the stewards and press will be atop the roof.

Something of an international flavor will mark the running of the Pimlico Special Nov. 1. Of the five thoroughbreds to face the starter, two are foreign importations and three are American bred.

FOUR HARRIERS LOST, N. U. STILL THREAT

Football coaches are supposed to have a monopoly on moaning at this particular season of the year, but Jerry Tatton, Northeastern's personable cross-country mentor, is demanding a place in the weeping room.

His chief complaints are against the United States government, clergymen, doctors, and the European combatants.

The idea behind the whole thing is that four of Tatton's prospective stars were suddenly taken away from him by the four defendants in Tatton's damage suit.

JOE GALLANT MARRIED

The United States government called Joe McGonigle to Pensacola for flying training, ace miler Joe Gallant married himself away from the cross country team, Captain Dave Lockerby is undergoing an operation this week, and Max Stone still is in Bordeaux, France, trying to escape from temporary exile.

Otherwise everything is fine at Northeastern, for Tatton has a young, inexperienced, but definitely promising squad backed up by a flock of outstanding freshmen, who will become varsity stars next year.

Dick Carpenter of Fairhaven, former cross-country captain at Hebron, heads the varsity array. In the meet with Mass. State last week he brought Capt. Lockerby along and finished in a dead heat with Dave, because he knew that this would be his captain's final race.

WIN BOTH MEETS

Sam Drevitch of Roxbury, 600-yard star, John Campbell of Quincy who has improved rapidly, and another Quincy boy, Paul Durup are in the top ranks.

Durup has been somewhat of a disappointment this year after a sensational freshman career. Coach Tatton, however, expects him to come out of his slump in time for the New England intercollegiates at Franklin Park.

Supplementing the first four are sophomores Harold Fine of Malden, John Fitzpatrick of Foxboro, and Don Linnell of Winchester. Others include Roland Webber of Boston, Ebbie Landsman of Dorchester, Art Annis of Marblehead and Richard Leland of Belmont.

The present aggregation, which has won two meets by a perfect score, is headed by Ed Parker of Arlington and Warren Doe of Dedham, both of whom are destined for stardom.

For the time being, however, Tatton is worrying about this year and is reiterating his complaints against the United States government, clergymen, doctors and the European combatants.

O'Brien Praised By Boss

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18 (INS)—What's the matter with Davey O'Brien?

Has the little ex-Texas Christian grid sensation, who was the outstanding pass demon of last year's collegiate ranks, found the company of pro ranks too fast for him?

Davey, the prize recruit of the season for Bert Bell's Philadelphia Eagles and one of the highest-salaried players ever to enter pro ranks, made a brief appearance in New York Sunday when the Giants humbled the Birdmen, 27-10. The little bantam back tossed two aerials, both of which were intercepted, and then found himself tackled three times for losses aggregating 24 yards on atempts to heave the oval.

Various reasons were given for his flop. Davey is missing the protection afforded him last year at T. C. U. by the all-American center, Ki Aldrich; Davey isn't being given time enough to get his tosses off; maybe the pro boys, out for individual honors and higher salaries, are letting O'Brien shift for himself.

But Bell, boss of the Eagles, who have yet to win this year, has his own answer.

"There isn't anything the matter with O'Brien," Bell said. "We're perfectly satisfied with him. He's a great passer, a great ball player and he's going to be one of the best ex-college men to come to the pro game.

"O'Brien has thrown about 31 passes this season, of which 13 were completed. That isn't bad when you consider that last year under 50 per cent completion won the league prize."

Four More For Wilson

WIN WITH WILSON!

Walters Voted Most Valuable

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 (INS)—Bucky Walters, leading pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, whose 27 victories sparked his team to the National League pennant, has been voted the league's most valuable player by the Baseball Writer's Ass'n of America.

A committee of 24 baseball writers, three from each National League city, gave Walters 303 points out of a possible total of 336. The lanky Reds moundsman won 18 first-place votes, five for second place and one for fifth place.

Grid Dodgers Buy 2 More Players

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Football League today announced the purchase of two more players to bolster the team for the final half of the season.

Blame Grads for Pitt Woe

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18 (AP)—Chancellor John G. Bowman blames a "small group of alumni" for the University of Pittsburgh's troubles. Answering criticism of the school's administrative setup by a special investigating committee of the University board of trustees, the chancellor told the board last night:

"... When athletics, the faculty, the students, the newspapers, alumno clubs, the Legislature in Hahbisburg and now the board of trustees itself are kept in a state of agitation by a small group of alumni, progress is impossible.

"Time will make all of this, with its motives, clear."

At the outset of his statement, the man who has headed Pitt for 19 years complained that he "was consulted in no way" by the investigators during their six-month inquiry and that the report's effect is to "hurt the university." Dr. Bowman struck back point for point in defense of his policies.

The investigation followed the resignation of Dr. John B. Sutherland as head football coach last spring. The committee expressed regret over the loss of Sutherland. Dr. Bowman's statement did not mention the matter.
